BEAUTY WHICH JEROME FEARS MAY GET A VERDICT FOR THAW

Copyright by Campbell Photograph Comp any.

The brooding eyes of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw in this photograph may well have been looking into a sorrowful future. Now, as she appears in court, Dorothy Dix says of her "As usual, Evelyn looked very pale, and very frightened and miserable."

DISTRICT ATTORNEY SEEKS TO BAR WIFE FROM TRIAL

Fears Influence of Her Pathetic Face on Jury If She Remains in Court Room—Tenth Juror Chosen for Thaw Early To-day.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—John A. Dendee, an agent of No. 271 Broadway, single, thirty-eight years old, was accepted as the tenth juror in the Thaw case just before noon to-day.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Realizing the influence that the pathetic figure of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw may have on the jury that is to try her husband for the murder of Stanford White, the first move that District-Attorney Jerome will make when the jury box is filled, it was said to-day, would be to move that she, as well as Mrs. William Thaw, the prisoner's mother, be removed from the trial room.

The motion will be the usual one that all witnesses be excluded from the court room. That would at least bar Evelyn Thaw from court until after she has testified. If she remained in the room after that, as the trial drew to a close, when her appearance would be the most effective, it would be at the discretion of the court.

COUNTESS IGNORES EVELYN.

All of the Thaw party was in court today when the trial was resumed. Evelyn, with her actress chum, May MacKenzie, and Mr. George Lauder Carnegie, were the first to arrive, looking for all the world like a picnic party. Evelyn carried a large lunch box as did May MacKenzie and Mrs. Carnegie. Mrs. Carnegie carried a small grip.

When Mrs. William Thaw, the mother, and the Countess of Yarmouth, accompanied by Edward and Josiah Thaw, arrived, there were seemingly friendly greetings from every one except the Countess, who remained aloof and took her accustomed place without noticing the pale and sad faced wife and her smiling chorus girl companion.

THAW APPEARS HAPPY.

Mrs. Carnegie who had been sitting next to Evelyn, gave her place to Mrs. William Thaw. During the roll-call of talesmen Evelyn read several letters, which she took from a shoulder bag.

Harry Thaw was in a happy frame of mind to-day, in sharp contrast to his sullen, morose humor of yesterday.

He walked with springy, jaunty step to his seat and smilingly turned to greet his wife and mother. Thaw had a letter which seemed to amuse him greatly. He smiled several times and once or twice chuckled audibly.

Thaw spoke to his counsel several times and evinced a lively interest in the examinatio nof the talesmen. After the roll-call and the new panel of 100 talesmen, ordered to report to-day, the hunt for the tenth juror began in earnest to fill the box was commenced.

Theodore R. Bruning, the first talesman called, was quickly excused. Daniel D. Martin, the usual talesman, was satisfactory to the defense, but challenged by the State.

Sydney H. Salomon, a broker, said the evidence in a capital case would have to be very strong before he would convict. He was excused.

RUNAWAY BOYS NEARLY FROZEN FOUND IN CAR

Two South End Lads, Locked In N. Y. Freight Car For 48 Hours, Are Rescued.

Having run away from home three days ago on a trip to seek their fortunes, Jacob Levy, fifteen years old, of No. 29 Mayo street, South End, and William Johnson, fifteen years old, of No. 27 Mayo street, were half frozen and nearly starved when lifted out of a box car this morning by a policeman in New York, according to dispatches from that city to the BOSTON AMERICAN.

After they had crawled into the New York, New Haven & Hartford Company's car in the yards here, the door was locked. For hours the boys pounded and kicked on the door, but their noises, to which were added their terrified screams, failed to reach the ear of anr of the railroad men.

The two runaways were in a pitiful condition when they were rescued. They could scarcely move, and were covered with dirt. While in their cold wooden prison they kept from freezing by burrowing in a pile of cast off grain sacks. They are now held by the New York police to await the disposition of the Boston authorities.

Young ivy lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Levy. He left home Saturday morning to go to work as usual. His mother had not heard from him since, until informed of his whereabouts by a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day.

"My boy is wayward," sobbed Mrs. Levy. "He is now on probation from the West Roxbury Parental Home. His downfall is due to bad companions, dime novels and cigarettes."

William Johnson lives with his father, W. J. Johnson, a hard-working carpenter. The father declared he couldn't account for als son's actions.

CHILDREN DIED IN FLAMES.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., Jn. 29.—While Mrs. Joseph Knuckles was going to a well, a short distance from her home at Spring Hill, her house caught fire and her two children, aged three years and one year, were burned to death.

HUNT FOR WOMAN TO BARE THAW MOTIVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Subpoena servers of the District Attorney's office have thrown a dragnet over New York to locate a woman who is said to know what inspired Harry Thaw to take the life of Architect Stanford White. The missing woman so badly wanted by the prosecution is Mrs. J. J. Caine. Mrs. Caine is a close friend of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. Efforts to find her have failed.

When Mrs. Caine knows much of the early relations of Stanford White and the artist model, the first meetings of Harry Thaw and "the flower girl," and the difficulties with the mother that grew out of the association of Evelyn and the young Pittsburg millionaire.

When Mrs. Charles J. Holman, then Mrs. Nesbit, came to this city with little Evelyn, they went to live on West Twenty second street. Mrs. Caine, a buyer for a Boston millinery house, lived at the same place. The Nesbits were in hard straits and Mrs. Caine helped them.

Mrs. Caine knew all the circumstances of the first meeting with Stanford White and later with Harry Thaw. It was to Mrs. Caine that Evelyn unburdened her soul of her troubles and the cruelties and horrors she had to undergo.

After Harry Thaw and Evelyn had been banished from the Cumberland Hotel following their return from Europe, in 1904, Evelyn went to live with Mrs. Caine, and it was there that Thaw called upon her. Mrs. Caine continued in the closest of friendly relations with Evelyn Nesbit after her marriage and knew in detail all that inspired Harry Thaw to shoot down the architect on the roof of Madison Square

"I KNEW EVELYN AND WHITE ALSO."

—JACK BARRYMORE.

Jack Barrymore, the actor-artist brother of Ethel Barrymore, with whose company he is appearing at the Colonial Theatre, has been subpoenaed as a witness for the prosecution in the trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White. Mr. Barry-

"WHY AM I DRAGGED INTO THE CASE?"—BARRYMORE

"I HAVE been a friend of Mrs. Harry Kendall Thaw for several years. I knew her before her marriage and when she was Evelyn Nesbit. I dislike this notoriety exceedingly and only wish that I might be kept entirely out of the Thaw case. I can't see why the District Attorney's office should drag me into it."—Jack Barrymore's statement to BOSTON AMERICAN.

THROWN THROUGH CAR WINDOW BY COLLISION

TROLLEY CRASH IN MANCHESTER, N. H., INJURES POLICEMAN AND TWO PASSENGERS.

Special to the Boston American.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 29.—In a head-on collision between two electric cars near the Boston & Maine freight station to-day, Patrolman James F. Dunn of the local police force, were severely and two passengers were slightly hurt. Dunn, who is six feet three inches tall, was thrown through a car window and was terribly cut about the face and head. The passengers were hustled away to carriages by the railway officials who made every effort to cover up the accident.

A Goff's Falls car left City Hall at 5 o'clock, and when near the transfer station was switched over to the northbound track because of the fault of the railway company of using the southbound track as a stalling place for cars during the night. On this track the car smashed into a northbound Nashua and Manchester car on its way to the barn in charge of an empty car, passed inside. It is said that the extra car carried no headlight and there were no passengers aboard.

Both cars were wrecked by the force of the collision, but the employes escaped injury. A thick fog obscured the vision of the motormen at the time of the accident.

LOWELL MAYOR OPENS WAR ON FIRE TRAPS

TRAGEDY IN CARD BUILDING BLAZE STIRS EXECUTIVE TO ACTION.

LOWELL, Jan. 29.—The Card building last night. There were over 100 women and girls in the various rooms of the five stories of the structure. A panic followed the sounding of the alarm, and in the rush down the winding stairways three young women were badly injured.

Several girls clung to the fire escapes until rescued by firemen. Frank Keyes, a young man employed in the building, hung from the sill of a third-story window until safely taken down a ladder.

Men are to-day searching the ruins for the body of a young woman, who, it is feared, was burned to death.

Freight Crashes Into Express on B. & M.
5 KILLED IN WRECK

VICTIMS' BODIES BURNED BY FIRE THAT FOLLOWS COLLISION ON FITCHBURG DIVISION.

Special to the Boston American.

GREENFIELD, Jan. 29.—Five were killed and one passenger injured early today when a fast freight crashed into the rear end of the Albany express a mile west of West Deerfield station on the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Fire followed the collision and destroyed the three end coaches of the express, burning the bodies of the trainmen who were caught in the debris and probably instantly killed in the crash.

The express left Greenfield late and just beyond the West Deerfield station stopped, as Engineer Hutchins explains on account of an automatic air signal denoting a parting of the train. The rear brakeman was sent back to flag following trains, but before he had gained the safety distance, a fast freight came along through the deep cut at a thirty-five-mile clip and crashed into the rear car of the express.

This car was wrecked. The gas tank in the second car exploded and fire followed. The train men in the rear car were caught and before their bodies could be recovered, they were burned beyond recognition.

There were no passengers in the rear car. Two of the train men were the conductor and baggageman of the express. The others were train hands who were "deadheading" back to Troy.

In the second car from the rear was J. A. Clapper of the U. S. S. Wabash. The latter was seriously injured and taken to the hospital here.

There were but seventeen passengers on the train, and seven of these were in the sleeper, one of the first cars on the train.

The express leaves Boston every night at 11:30, and consists of fast express freight and baggage cars, sleeper and three coaches. It is due to leave here at 3:32 a. m., but was fourteen minutes late leaving.

THE DEAD.

BUSSENO, GEORGE, forty years old, Troy, N. Y., conductor of train No. 11.

HARRINGTON, GEORGE W., thirty years old, Troy, N. Y., baggagemaster train No. 11.

FITZPATRICK, M., engineer, Troy, N. Y.

COTA, CHAUNCY, engineer, Mechanicsville, N. Y.

DENNISON, R. JR., fireman, Mechanicsville, N. Y.

SERIOUSLY INJURED.

CLAPPER, J. A., Boston, U. S. S. Wabash, taken to Greenfield Hospital.

PICK UP HUB SAILOR IN DORY

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—George Williams of East Boston, a fisherman, was brought here yesterday on the schooner Susan N. Pickering. Williams was picked up by the Pickering off Thatchers light on January 23.

He had gone adrift in his dory from the schooner Georgiana of Gloucester, and had drifted about for thirty-six hours without food or water in a severe gale and with the temperature several degrees below zero.

Both of Williams's hands were badly frozen. He is twenty-two years old. He tells a remarkable story of his long fight against death in the intense cold before his rescue.

He was out alone in his dory when a sudden heavy southeast gale set in. He tried to reach the vessel, but could not find her.

"JACK" BARRYMORE NEW FIGURE IN THAW MYSTERY

Actor Subpoenaed in Case Declares He Knew Evelyn Nesbit and Stanford White but Declares He Knows Little About Possible Causes of Tragedy.

more, who was at the trial yesterday and returned to Boston last night, is at the Bellevue, where he admitted having received the subpoena and having been interviewed by representatives of the District Attorney's office in New York.

The story reported in New York is to the effect that Mr. Barrymore was to be held as a sort of club over the head of Ethel Nesbit Thaw in case she made any statements that reflected on White. It was said that it was the purpose of the prosecution to have Barrymore in court every day, where he could be seen by young Mrs. Thaw, whom he knew before her marriage. It was said that the District Attorney's detectives tried to have the actor take a seat beside the young wife in the courtroom yesterday, but were frustrated in their attempt.

Barrymore will not be at the trial daily, he said to-day. He is not in the cast of "Captain Jinks" at the Colonial, but will appear in "A Doll's House," which will be played at the matinees on Thursday and Saturday.

"I happened to be in New York yesterday," he said, "and with about a hundred more, I should say, I was summoned in the Thaw case. I walked into the court room and because I was recognized the boys proceeded to make copy out of me.

"I knew Evelyn Nesbit before she was married. I also know Mr. White. But I do not see how I could tell very much of the relations between White and the girl. How could I?

"As to the stories that I am to be held as a club over the head of the girl by the District Attorney, I think that the best thing to do with anything of that kind is to kill it. All there is to the story in New York is that I may be called as a witness, and if I do I shall have simply the story of my acquaintance with the former Miss Nesbit and Mr. White to tell."

'Evelyn Remarkable Judge of Human Nature.'

"THE jury is all right so far, and Evelyn is entitled to a large share of the credit for what I have done in aiding the selection of these men. She is a remarkable judge of human nature.—Harry K. Thaw.

SNUBBING OF EVELYN

BY WOMEN OF FAMILY

A MENACE TO THAW

By Publishers' Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Making mistakes seems to be a habit with the Thaw family—a fatal habit.

The big mistake of Harry Thaw's career cost Stanford White his life. A big mistake now being made by the entire Thaw family threatens to work equal disaster for the man on trial for his life. The error is in the attitude of those of the Thaw blood toward the little daughter by adoption—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

A widening chasm separates the Thaws from the former artist model. The denials of the fact are merely part of the perfunctory duties of the attorneys for the defence. The thin veil of formality being the breech is to-day stretched to the point where a tribe may rend it. Every hour of the day sees some snub from the Thaws handed the little woman who is the one person in the world between Harry K. Thaw and the electric chair. Any hour may see a break.

Currency the Thaw Creed.

The Thaw skull is evidently thick. Currency is still the family creed. Appreciation of the power of this pamphlet girl is apparently not understood by the Thaws. The family has apparently not yet awakened to the realization of the fact that in the final judgment of the fate of its scion the words of this child-wife will ring in the ears of the jurors louder than the clink of all the Thaw gold.

In their narrow-mindedness and blind devotion to family the Thaws hold little Evelyn responsible for the wild life of the pampered son. To any one with the slightest inkling of the inside facts, the idea is pathetically absurd and ridiculous. Harry Thaw's life had responded to the call of the wild long before Evelyn Nesbit came into it.

Evelyn to Sway Jury.

The Thaw family is apt to discover its mistake too late if it believes that a jury of unbiased men can be made believe because of birth or social position the man who steered their course down the road of ruin is one whit better than the woman who accompanied him.

In the opinion of nine out of every ten in the street among Thaw, the wife has blotted out the memory of Evelyn Nesbit, the country girl. Her small hand will sway more sympathy from the slayer of Stanford White into all the Thaws combined—not excepting the gray haired mother.

PLEA OF INSANITY WILL VEIL SCANDAL

BY Julian Hawthorne

THE hour approaches when the jury box filled, the District Attorney must rise to make his first appeal on behalf of the State against the prisoner at the bar. The crop of rumors as to what will be the main lines of offence and defence, is constantly augmented, and strange tales are told of mysterious witnesses and of facts newly discovered which shed apocalyptic lights upon the situation.

No expert press agent, resolute to keep the existence and attractions of his principal constantly before the public eye, could be more ingenious and apt than are the guardians of the State and of the law-breaker, in what must be presumed to be their entirely inadvertant and unpremeditated admissions and statements regarding what is, what is to be, and what may happen.

And it is thoughtful of them to wish to keep us interested. At the same time, amid the revelry of our excitement, it will be prudent to keep steadily in view a small group of reasonable reflections. One of these, and the least reasonable one, has reference to the main line of attack and defence: Shall Thaw's plea acquittal on the ground of insanity or on that of justification? Which plea would be the less difficult and embracing for the State to meet, and which consequently would the defence prefer to adopt?

Small Chance for Jerome to Send Thaw to Chair.

At the first flush it would seem that the defence should espouse the cracked more formidable to Mr. Jerome, but the situation here is so peculiar that the alternative course seems the more likely. In other words, the defence may reasonably be expected to adopt the insanity plea, not because it will embarrass Mr. Jerome, but precisely because that is the plea that will best suit him. In his capacity as District Attorney, Mr. Jerome must of course desire to vindicate the majesty of the law, have his prisoner guilty on the capital charge and see the jury bring a verdict to that effect.

But, as a mere human being, far from defective in intelligence, Mr. Jerome must be aware that the chances of any jury sending this particular prisoner to the electric chair are unusually remote. In such a predicament, how can he best achieve defeat of the main issue, while saving, so far as possible, his official face? Obviously to be defeated on the ground of justification would be less desirable than to convict on the other.

But not only would the success of the justification plea tend to discredit the district attorney's office personally; there is another consideration. The insanity plea would safeguard the prosecution against the danger of having the defence take up the question of the character of White's private life previous to the time of the killing.

Insanity Plea Would Avoid Raking Scandal.

They are anxious to avoid this, not only because of the scandal which it would bring upon the memory of the dead man himself, but even more, perhaps, by reason of the fact that it would involve in that scandal the names of a group of well known men in New York, whose standing is believed—rightly or wrongly—to have been on fairly similar terms with White.

If Thaw can be proved insane, all this painful passage is avoided. The scandal and silence Thaw's own lawyers only concern, after all, is to save their client's life; they will be quite content to purchase his safety at that price. It is therefore to be expected that the District Attorney may look with favor upon any plea of defence which appears to be on other grounds so excellent.

Now, although Thaw personally may prefer to face death rather than a lunatic house, his counsel have no professional right to accept any such view of the case, and they will, therefore, agree with Jerome in choosing the more difficult line of action. We are, therefore, presented with the unusual spectacle of the two sides in the prosecution playing into one another's hands. Thaw is to be convicted as in sane by the "experts" on both sides, because the prosecution feels to meet him on the ground of justification and because the defence feel themselves under no such ground of insanity. Should this view of the matter develop a commission of lunatics unprecedented may be expected as soon as the jury can be obtained, and if the talesmen knew that such was to be the upshot of the case they might prove less morbidly "conscientious" and "prejudicial" under examination.

DEFEAT FOR N. Y. HERALD IN COURTS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The New York Herald Company, noted for its infamous "red light" personal columns, met with another defeat in its efforts to have the indictment against the corporation set aside. Judge Hough, in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court, has just handed down a decision whereby the company is held responsible and is liable, just like its owner, James Gordon Bennett.

The Herald Company filed a demurrer and this was set aside. This means that the Herald Company as a corporation will have to go to trial, as well as Publisher Bennett and his advertising counsel, Manley M. Gilliam.

Judge Hough's decision refers to the Herald as an "obscene paper." The scandal and its "red light" columns is the next big case on the criminal calendar of the United States Court, and United States District Attorney Stimson is making every effort to reach it as quickly as possible. Mr. Stimson considers Judge Hough's decision of the highest importance, for he has now evidence to show that persons in the Herald corporation had actual knowledge of what crime was being committed through the publication of the vicious personals. The government case against the Herald began with the arrest of five of the editors, all of whom were held to await the action of the Federal Grand Jury.

SAYS MAYOR'S PROBE PLAN IS DODGE SCHEME

"Mayor Fitzgerald's perfectly transparent attempt to dodge the demand for inquiry into Boston's finances," Representative Walter A. Wolster of Ward 22 said today to the BOSTON AMERICAN, "discloses the measure of the man's conceit. Nothing like the investigation bill that he introduces before the House has been before come to my attention. It is a marvel.

"On every hand I have been hearing complimentary things about my bill to provide for a real investigation of the financial affairs and condition of the city of Boston. The committee on metropolitan affairs is to take my bill up again to-morrow, when Corporation Counsel Babson will, it is expected, come up to tell the committee why such an investigation as we propose should not be begun.

"Many men have told this committee why the investigation should be made. I doubt if as many volunteer to appear to prevent it.

"One of the best arguments for a thorough probe of Boston's finances is the fact that following our first move in that direction, Mayor Fitzgerald himself on December 13 sent to the City Council his own suggestion of an inquiry. Now, as is well known, he comes to the Legislature with a bill. And such a bill! It isn't long—ten or eleven lines in all. Listen to it:

"Any commission appointed to consider the financial condition of the city of Boston, under authority of the City Council of said city, shall have the right to summon witnesses and enforce their attendance and the production of books and papers and to administer oaths in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 175 of the Revised Laws."

"Any commission!' Mind that. Any commission! A commission this year, next year or ten years from now? Mr. Fitzgerald, in my opinion, must have a poor opinion of this Legislature if he has thought, even for a minute, that such an immaturely drawn, such a crude proposition as this, ever had a show up here.

"Consider what we have shown to the committee, that Boston's per capita tax is the biggest of all American cities and her tax rate the biggest of all save one. Consider the necessity of a probe, admitted by the Mayor and insisted upon by us, and then say how the City Hall bill, telling indefinitely what shall be the powers of any committee, fits the situation as compared with a bill calling for a commission of five members to be chosen by the Governor and directed to proceed forthwith into an honest, fearless, thorough search of the financial affairs of Boston for the personal and past several years."

That the metropolitan affairs committee should promptly report a probe measure which may combine the Webster and the John K. Berry bills was advocated before the committee yesterday by Mr. Webster, Mr. Berry, former Representative Thomas M. Lovell, Joseph Thomas F. Doherty and Franklin I. Young.

MAY SUE B. & A. ROAD FOR DELAY ON BUFFALO RUN

Among the most indignant of the 8 local passengers of the train on the Boston & Albany Railroad which was held for half hours between Buffalo and Boston on January 26, and who have held a meeting for the purpose of taking some kind of action, is Professor C. A. E. Winslow of the Institute of Technology. As a starter fifteen passengers have sent a protest to the company. Other steps are being considered.

"We had a very rocky trip from Chicago," said Professor Winslow this morning. "The service was bad. Such service is ludicrous to the travelling man, especially to the drummer who loses his appointments in the negligence of the railroad company.

"Everyone expects to get to his destination some time, but it's no fun to be cooped up in stuffy cars."

The train that lost so much its was divided into sections at Syracuse. The protestants decline the engines that the Boston section were inadequate. They say this method is not uncommon with the Boston & Albany road. They announce that if the management cannot be curbed in any other way, an organization of passengers should be formed to protect travellers' interests.

LYCEUM SINGERS THRILLED AUDIENCE

The concert by the Vegabonda Quartet and Miss Charlotte Masonta in the Boston Lyceum Course last night was greatly enjoyed. Tremont Temple was crowded, and the classic songs of Miss Masonta and the numbers of lighter vein by the quartet were greatly appreciated. One of the features of the evening was the singing of Gounod's Ave Maria by Miss Masonta. The bass singing of Leverett B. Merrill and the baritone of Stephen Town-send were received with especial favor.

RACES AT SKATING RINK.

The race last evening at the Park Square Skating Rink proved a very exciting one. Racing seems to be sport demanded by the patrons this Winter. Skating sessions are held three times daily. Music is furnished by a well-known military band.

It Is Well That You Did NOT Attend These Sales Monday

THIS announcement is addressed to those who did not attend our sales of furniture and silks yesterday.

WE FRANKLY confess that we over-advertised these sales. We did not expect to sell more than half the amount of furniture and silks that we sold yesterday. Preparations were made for the largest crowds in the history of any store in Boston—Extra salespeople and extra space were provided—special arrangements of stocks added to the convenience of our customers—and still our facilities were greatly overtaxed.

TODAY we shall be very busy again. But we have made still greater preparations and it will be easier for you to make selections. We would have it clearly understood that merchandise is provided in such mammoth quantities for these sales that today's choosing will be equally as good as Monday's. In fact our displays for today will be almost entirely new—goods that were not shown yesterday. They will be taken from the reserve stocks and placed on sale. Qualities, quantities and values will be equal in every respect to those secured yesterday by the thousands of discriminating men and women who attended these sales.

IN CONCLUSION let us thank the people of Boston for their keen appreciation of our February Semi-annual Furniture Sale and our 1907 Silk Sale—two events that through the co-operation of the people of Boston and vicinity have proved in one day a revelation to all New England.

"WHAT'S THE BILL?"--THAW

"WHAT is the bill? How much?" It is the question he has always asked at every turn of his wayward career, and for the first time in his life there is no answer. For the first time he cannot settle for the wrong he has done with a check.

BUT now he has come to the place where the bill must be paid in something else than money and he is like a man suddenly bereft of the gods in which he had trusted. He had not counted on this.—Dorothy Dix.

For First Time in His Life Money Fails Harry Thaw

"Above All He Has a Dull Wonder at This Thing for Which He Cannot Give a Check and Settle the Bill."

BY Dorothy Dix

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The two days' reprieve from the ordeal of the courtroom and the agony of listening, hour after hour, to the District Attorney's iterated and reiterated question to the talesmen if they will, upon their oath, enforce the death penalty should the prisoner at the bar be proven guilty, brought rest and refreshment to the Thaw family, and when they entered the courtroom yesterday they looked less worn and sad than they have at any time during the trial.

The lawyers for the defence have vociferously denied that there was any breach between Thaw's mother and sister and his wife, but appearances belie the statement that the feminine members of the family exist in a turtle dove attitude toward each other.

Despite the necessity of their standing together and presenting a united front to the enemy, it becomes more and more apparent that the Thaws have no love for Evelyn, and they endure her only because they must; because she is their trump card, the one creature who can do more to save Harry than everybody else combined in the world.

As usual, Evelyn looking very pretty, very pale and very frightened and unhappy, and her chorus-girl chum, May McKenzie, looking smart, and trim and trig and self-possessed to the very point of insolence, with her little, boss, hatchet face, as hard and incisive as a razor, came into court early and took their accustomed seats in the row reserved for them back of the prisoner's little table.

Thaws Give Evelyn a Chilly Greeting.

Evelyn wore a dark blue tailor-made suit, with a black velvet hat of the squash pie variety, with a white veil over her face that she never lifted; while Miss McKenzie was resplendent in purple from head to foot.

Ten minutes later, Mrs. William Thaw, accompanied by the Countess of Yarmouth and Mrs. Carnegie, came in. They swept by the two ex-chorus girls without a vestige of recognition and with some little haste drew out a chair and placed it, not by the side of Evelyn and May McKenzie, but in front of them, and in this the Countess of Yarmouth seated herself, after which she turned around and bestowed upon her sister-in-law one of the most pronounced and sarcastic bows, so frigid that it lowered the temperature in the already chilly atmosphere of the court room.

The Countess, who is an extremely pretty woman, although exceedingly like Harry—an edition de luxe of her companion piece looking brother—wore as he under wrap a brown mustard and salt shaker, cut bolsky in the skirts. When she pulled this off she showed a pretty green checked taffeta tailor suit trimmed with velvet, worn with a white shirt waist. She had on a green toque and a black chiffon veil that she threw over her hat in such a strange, cryptic expression that made it seem a type of combination of the veil of sorrow mourning the sorrows that man has brought upon her.

Thaw, for the most part, is quiet as a statue. He sits at the head of his little table the long day through, with his eyes traveling to the face of the judge, to the faces of the jury, to the face of Jerome, walking back and forth in his little enclosure and insisting on the hard old law of a life for a life, to the silhouettes watching him, with the usual effect his very soul, and then his face settles into an expression that is becoming habitual with him.

Reaches End of Purchasing Power of His Wealth.

It is an expression of dreary wonder, of dreary, hopeless bewilderment, for deep down in his subconscious self, Harry Thaw is asking the judge, is asking the jury, is asking the prosecuting attorney, is asking the men who are drawing him and writing about him, one question, and the question is "What is the bill? How much?"

It is the question he has always asked at every turn of his wayward career, and for the first time in his life there is no answer. For the first time he cannot settle for the wrong he has done with a check. For the first time he has come to the end of the purchasing power of money.

In our money worshipping country there is nothing that a man cannot do that a man cannot square with a check book, and Harry Thaw realizes that he has always, in fact, defied the laws of God and man and the—"good" will of an outraged public. Therefore, he grew to have implicit faith in the power of his wealth to save him from the consequences of his acts, and now that his staff has broken under him he does not know what to make of it. It never did before.

As a boy he went off to school to a little university in Ohio. He got classes, refused to study, defied the college authorities, broke every rule and did every forbidden thing, but he was not formidable. He sent home. His mother paid the bill, his generous donations to the school.

Son of a Millionaire, Never Called to Account.

His youth was one of wild debauchery. There were days together when, surrounded by the men and women of the Pittsburg demi-monde, he indulged in wild orgies in which champagne flowed like water, and they drowned themselves in seas of drink. He was a mere boy, little more than a child, but no one dreamed of stopping him, of calling him to account. He was the son of a millionaire. He could pay for his vices, and when the orgy was over he settled the bill without a protest.

Later on, as if in utter satiety, he had a mad caprice to shock society by being seen together the most beautiful demi-mondaines of Europe. He did it and paid for it. If in drunken wantonness it amused him to smash the mirrors of a gorgeous cafe or shoot out the lights or do any other vandal act, all that he had to do was to ask for the bill and pay it. That ended the matter.

Women, too, came into his life—some good, some bad. Few left it the better for having known him. Also, here was his money paid for the names he blackened, the souls he suffered, the hearts he broke. Even Evelyn Nesbit, whom he afterward married, charging him with having beaten her and treating her most brutally, let him buy her silence with a large sum of money.

Bill Must Be Paid in Something Else Than Money.

Is it any wonder that he should believe the check book all-powerful and that he was above the law as long as his money lasted?

But now he has come to the place where the bill must be paid in something else than money and he is like a man suddenly bereft of the gods in which he had trusted. He had not counted on this.

He had not counted on the long, weary months in the Tombs, where he had to lie just as hard and be guarded as closely as the subject of the most restrictions as the poorest criminal in the prison. He had not counted on facing death or its horrible alternative, the madhouse. Some way, somehow, he felt that his powerful law would not desert him, that his millions would be smoothed over, and that his doting old mother could pay his way out of this scrape as she had paid him out of so many others. And she cannot do it, and it bewilders him.

DREADS ALIENISTS MORE THAN CHAIR

BY Rev. Dr. Madison J. Peters

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Thaw eagerly scrutinizes each face in the jury box from time to time so as to impress the lineaments on his memory. Doubtless he dreams of them in the solitude of his cell, and his prosaic visions probably conjure up the foreman with smiling face handing down the verdict: "Not guilty."

Whoever says that Thaw is suffering from nervous tension or exhibits any signs of mental degeneration or deterioration has not studied him at close range or else is defective as a pirenedogist.

To me Thaw looked to be the calmest man in the court; he was thoroughly self-possessed, and as the central figure was taking the deepest interest in all that surrounded him. He was altogether in suffering looking young man. Only for disheveled, wild-eyed, fear haunted Thaw I talked to on Nov. 22d in the Tombs on Christmas Day last.

Then there were no signs of something intangible hatanting him.

"Like one who on a lonesome road

Doth walk in fear and dread,

And having once turned round walks on,

And turns no more his head,

Because he thinks a fearful fiend

Doth close behind him tread."

The inverse spectre published and it looks as if the white-winged angel of hope was somewhere near. The foreman will conclude which amounts together the finer feelings and discards the dross of the baser passions.

Alienists Thaw's Great Dread.

Thaw needs all the best metal that is in him to stand the test to which he will be subjected.

It is either Jerome nor Garvan that Thaw dreads most: it is the cold, scientific glitter in the scintillating eyes of the retired alienists whose gaze is directed upon him from time to time, measuring his every look and movement to try to discover the hooks upon which to hang the insanity proof, which the prisoner dreads even more than the electric chair, for he knows that such would consign him to a living death in a lunatic asylum.

Whatever he may have been when he fired the shot that sent Stanford White to his account, I believe he is now thoroughly sane, and as for physical degeneracy, there is not a trait of it visible.

Leans to Side of Mercy.

He would be a wise prophet who could forecast the outcome of the Thaw trial. To look as if the consensus of opinion leans to the side of mercy for the wayward, passion-enslaved, money cursed boy. Thaw has not studied him at close range or else is defective as a pirenedogist.

'CONSENSUS OF OPINION WOULD FREE HARRY THAW'

BY Alfred Henry Lewis

RECENTLY a gentleman with an ambition to shine inkishly wrote me, and after confiding his anxiety to become a second Macaulay, asked what rules could be laid down as a guide to good writing. I told him that he must either write old things in a new way, new things in an old way, or new things in a new way. To write old things in an old way was to fail as assuredly as though he had attempted to build a fire with ashes.

After an unprejudiced review of this counsel I still pronounce it sound. And yet its application in any of its three angles is almost impossible if one be called upon to add to the literature of the Thaw case.

The story, from a day antedating by months the shooting down of Stanford White, has been beaten like a carpet. Nothing has been left unsaid, nothing has been left unguessed. The story has been made threadbare by much handling.

The case is a big case, but it only big because the millions possessed by those involved. If Stanford White had been Bully Jones of Avenue A; if Harry Thaw were a member in good, that is to say, bad, standing in the Paul Kelly gang, and Evelyn Thaw the half-paid seamstress of some Hester street sweatshop, little would be said and less to thought of the passing litigation. It would hold no more interest, no one save a handful of half-world discerning, it as could take but an hour to select the jury and a day to hear the cause.

Background Filled By Thaw Millions.

The defendant would go to the chair; or, being more free, to some three dingy East Side apartments from which the hand of the law had for the moment taken him.

Since, however, the background is filled loosely in with the Thaw millions, the force, and of course, a different result, interest begins to squirm unreasonably. A rich man has been killed; a rich man did the killing, and so much gets up to favor the tale in every particular.

At the request of the AMERICAN I abode through the afternoon Justice Fitzgerald's court room. Being early prompt I sat there perhaps a hour minutes before The black robed one climbed to the bench. I was neither unwonted nor alone. Scores of other aficionados were there. Also in a whispering way they were and frank in giving their opinions. The sympathy seemed to be with Thaw. Not only the boys, but the belief was current that he would be acquitted.

No one bases this Thaw optimism on any specific ground. It is one and all "on the law." Some claimed that Thaw was insane. Among the ringsiders even mention of the battle being fought in was plain, however, that the conviction was not only general but gaining ground as time passed, as was expressed it with more point and vigor, "At the time of the killing the game law was out on Stanford White." He by his own black measure of life had placed himself beyond the pale. He was a moral outlaw, a social wolf's head, and considering all the circumstances his slaughter by Thaw was at the least unprovocative. It was a killing, not a murder. This is but common voice outside the rail.

Blight of Business Falls on Women.

Thaw's mother came in, sad-eyed, sombre. Her daughters, the Countess of Yarmouth and Mrs. Carnegie, were there. It was clear that the blight of this wretched business has fallen across Thaw as deeply as across the mother. Thaw's sisters are anguished, feline of cuddle and more material sort than either his mother or sisters be the better defended himself against any story-telling treachery on the part of his foes. His only expression was one, so to phrase it, of mute stolidity.

Naturally my eyes went at once to Thaw. His appearance has been described and reproduced in pictures, so often that I knew his face to face with him. I knew how he looked. What I did not know, however, and what no story told or picture shown me has yet explained, was the impression of an infinite sorrow which envelopes the man like an atmosphere. Here is a soul that was attired to the depths. But no remorse. Whether or no the law justifies the killing of White, the Thaw conscience is clear. The Thaw is on the rack; the Thaw is in torture, the future, frightens him. And yet I could see no trace, could gain no glint of any wish that he might undo what he has done.

"Thaw's Face is That of Spoiled Child."

Thaw's is not a face of clean and forceful interest. It is vague, uncertain, frail—the spoiled child face. The lines of no high aspiration right it up. For all that, it is not a bad face—not the face of either a maniac or a brute. Those who read "criminal" look are doubtless much assisted by the killing of White. And these who felt encountered Thaw on a day when his health may be free of delusions, he would have been the last any they would have selected or picked upon as a common man killer.

There is little or no trace from in Thaw's composition. I should not call him either stern or decisive in any virile sense. His manhood is not loud-shouldered, but deep-chested. His strength does not rest on explosives of stark courage. He has no innate directness, no fanatical hatreds. For that he lacks heart and fiber; to kill it briefly he is too weak, and to rear such towering, sinister emotions.

There is one emotion, however, which he can feel with all the potion that goes with a serpent's teeth, and that is jealousy. Whether he love wholly or love not, Thaw can love. And loving he can harbor poisonous and malignant passions and utter deeds that jealousy would carry him further to do. Thaw's face is more outrage and resentment than sorrow. Taken as a whole, it is the face of a man who could kill in all. Thaw would prove a dangerous personage to one who cost lawless looks at the wounds he loved; the more so when so by the vice or virtue of his weakness.

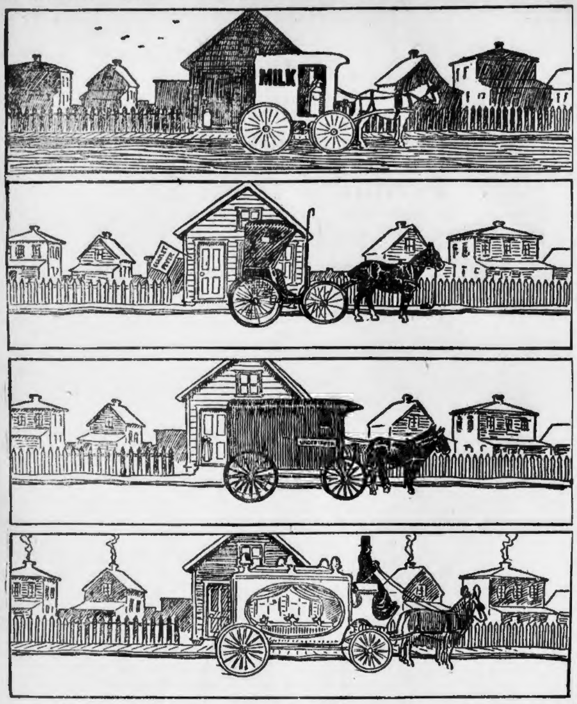
From Milk Cart to Hearse—Scarlet Fever's Evolution



The above is a stereopticon view used by Dr. Charles Harrington, secretary of the State Board of Health, in his talk to the Harvard Medical School, in which he described the dangerous methods prevalent in many of the dairies from which Boston gets her milk supply.

Plays That Were Continued for Week

"The New York Idea"

Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan Company in "The New York Idea" entered upon the last week of their stay at the Majestic Theatre last night with a house filled to capacity. The performance this week will afford Bostonians the last opportunities for seeing Langdon Mitchell's brilliant comedy.

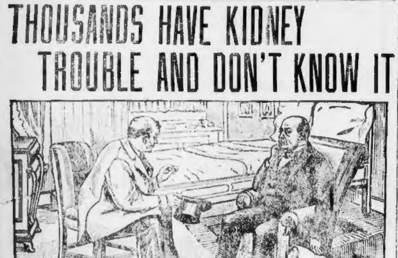
"Ben Hur"

"Ben Hur," at the Boston Theatre, is another of the repetitions of the week, and one which has apparently "broken the records" of the Boston stage in more respects than one. Probably no play has ever been offered here which has, for the same period of time, kept any theatre so uniformly filled.

"Mrs. Wilson-Andrews"

That jolliest and most magnetic of comediennes, May Irwin, began the second week of her engagement at the Park Theatre last evening in her new play, "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews," in which she has met with the greatest success ever since her season opened.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT



Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, many fatal results are sure to follow.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable curative power has been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine, you should have the best.

WILSON, CONN., Feb. 18th, 1906.

DEAR SIRS:

"A man could not be in any worse condition than I was with kidney and bladder troubles. I doctored with several good doctors and one physician told me I had Bright's Disease and that I would not live over six months. Another told me it was gall stones. I had severe pains in my kidneys all the while, could not stoop over, would be dizzy, could not lie down without someone helped me up; my back was weak and pained me; urine was as thick as cream and it would scald me something dreadful. I had to get up many times in the night to urinate.

I took Swamp-Root and to-day I am a well man and never felt better. All of my troubles have gone and show no signs of returning. I take my oath that Swamp-Root put me where I am to-day and I can prove it by acquaintances."

Very truly yours,
E. H. RAND.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but it promptly overcomes kidney, liver and bladder troubles, the symptoms of which are—obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, poor digestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, may be loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is also evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is for sale at drug stores the world over in bottles of two sizes and two prices—fifty cents and one dollar. Remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

SPECIAL NOTE.—In order to prove the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy they needed. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that you are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in the Boston Daily American. The genuineness o this offer is guaranteed.

FORBIDDEN 'TAPS' IS GIVEN HERE

The Kaiser's soldiery won the admiration and sympathy of two audiences at the Castle Square Theatre yesterday, when "Taps," the German military drama, was given for the first time in this city. Much interest was centred in its production, owing to the fact that by an order of Emperor William soldiers in the German army are forbidden to witness its performance.

Miss Thais Lawton as Clara Volkhardt, the heroine, and the only woman in the entire cast, captured the hearts of the audience completely. Her ability to portray a character that personified pathos was clearly shown. Ben Johnson as her father was a centre of storm and passion.

BROKEN HEARTS NICELY MENDED

"How Hearts Are Broken," Langdon McCormick's melodrama, has been played at the Grand Opera House before. The fact that the audience last evening was double in size that at the previous presentation shows that the news that it is a "bully" play has travelled. It is a play of pathos, comedy and tears, thrilling situations and sensational climaxes. In the leading part of Mona Fancher, Miss Eugenie Besserer's clever acting gains the approval of the audience, and she merits all the praise which is given her.

ARMY OF VAUDEVILLE AT OLD HOWARD

There is an array of vaudeville artists at the Old Howard this week. Hawthorn and Burt are real monarchs of conversational comedians. They are "hot-air" reiners. Shorty and Lillian DeWet, known as the mirthful midget and the merry maid, helped things along. Pongo and Leo, aerial gymnasts; Hayward, Conroy and Hayward, in "Marriage Is Sublime"; Harry Brown, ebony singing comedian, and George W. Hussey in a ventriloquial act, head the list.

THE SCOUT'S REVENGE IS VIVID PICTURE

It looks as though thrilling melodramas are again becoming popular. "The Scout's Revenge" brought record crowds to the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday. It is a vivid picture of frontier life, painted by a master hand. The story centres round Buck Henshawe, in love with Olive Benton, the daughter of a millionaire stockman.

NEW BILLS SEEN AT BURLESQUE HOUSES

"Paris by Night," although not as startling a production as its name might indicate, drew packed houses at the Lyceum yesterday. Gertrude Clancy opens the olio with illustrated songs, and Annie Goldie, singing soubrette, appears in songs that are notable mainly for loudness of voice. The Nelson-Farnum acrobatic troupe, however, presents a first-class act and do some very intricate stunts, including a midair somersault on six-foot stilts.

Weber and Rush's Bon Ton Burlesquers have everything their own way at the Palace this week. Two funny burlesques, "Louse Cafe" and "The Girl from Mars," present the big company to excellent advantage. The costuming is gorgeous. The olio is headed by Pierce and Opp, with their Dutch specialty.

Bright, breezy and gladsome, the Merrymakers made themselves solid at the Columbia yesterday. "The Mayor's Vacation," the afterpiece, was the chief vehicle, with its three sterling, fun-making characters—the Irish Mayor, the town crier with a hair-lip and his stuttering brother. Never did a funnier trio step on the Columbia stage.

There was a hot time at Austin & Stone's yesterday during the discussion of the shirt waist question by the Large Ladies' Congress, now in session there. It was asserted that any woman over 200 pounds appearing in a shirt waist was ignorant of what was correct in matters sartatorial. Ottura, Japanese wonder worker; James Irwin, who does feats upside down; Till's marionettes; Trixie and her snakes, and the giant python Ben-Hur, are in the Curio Hall, while the Minstrel Maids gave a bright entertainment in the theatre.

"SQUAW MAN" MAKES SOCIETY RUB ITS EYES

William Faversham and "The Squaw Man" made the Hollis street audience sit up and take notice last night. Here and there when the intensely dramatic presentation of real American life in the palmiest days of the wild and woolly West degenerated to a display of gun play, the pathos of the che-e-lli and the discovery of the long-cherished pe-e-apers, the dramatics of it all was forceful enough to make the fashionably-gowned house rub its eyes and wonder whether the theatre-bound car had not run down town too far.

Faversham altogether escapes the heroic atmosphere of the stirring story. First as the self-sacrificing British officer and later in the sage brush and alkali of the Western plains—even in the tragedy of the cowboy barrooom and gambling den, he is consistently true to life and always natural. The story in itself elicits a keen sympathy for Jim Carston and William Faversham seizes it and holds it consistently.

The abundant opportunities for clever character drawing in the "Squaw Man" are abundantly improved. Julie Opp as Diana assumes a difficult role superbly.

PLAYS SEVEN ROLES IN ORPHEUM SKETCH

Interest extraordinary greeted the appearance of Henri de Vries, the famous character impersonator from Holland, yesterday at the Orpheum. Nothing that can be compared to "A Case of Arson" has yet appeared in this city and big audiences spontaneously gave their approval to the difficult roles assumed by this famous actor. Mr. de Vries takes the part of seven witnesses apearing before a magistrate. There are many other unusual features on the bill and a lot of new acts. "Hooked by Crook," a one-act comedy, made a particularly pleasing impression. Herbert Brooks had his audience mystified with many new and mysterious tricks. The musical act of the Kinsons, "Going it Blind," was a triumph. Gardner and Stoddard, in vaudeville frivolities, made a distinct hit. Howard and North ("Those Were Happy Days"), the Bell trio and the Bell Prevost troupe of acrobats complete the big bill.

"A BRASS MONKEY" REVIVED AT BIJOU

Hoyt's "A Brass Monkey," for the first time in many years, was presented last night in Boston by John Craig and his wonderful company at the Bijou Theatre. It is built around the common trait of superstition. William Evarts, as Jonah, takes the leading part and introduces a number of pleasing songs. Mary Sanders did much in the way of upholding the good name of the Craig Stock Company, never failing to please. A number of specialties were introduced by different members

"ALL-OF-A-SUDDEN PEGGY" IS A SPARKLING COMEDY

Peggy did things all of a sudden at the Tremont Theatre last evening and caused people to laugh in the same manner. Peggy was Miss Henrietta Crosman, and her full name is Peggy O'Mara. She and her mother were stopping at the country house of Lord Crackenthorpe as unwelcome guests because all of the Lord's people think Peggy 's setting her cap for him.

The first thing that Peggy did all of a sudden was to fall into a brook while she was out walking. She got soaked up to the knees. She went into a cottage to get dry. Nobody at home, but a nice fire all ready, pipes on the mantel, guns in the corner and lots of actresses' pictures on the wall. Peggy took off her skirt and shoes and stockings and hung them up to dry. Then she walked about and inspected things. Nobody came in, but when she told about it when she returned the Lord Crackenthorpe people had fits—all but the Lord himself, who had a delightful penchant for saying: "Why not—why not?"

Then Peggy met the Lord's younger brother, Hon. Jimmy Keppel, who had been called home to entice Peggy away from the Lord. Jimmy helped Peggy out with a plot for a novel she was writing, and the impulsive girl threw her arms around his neck, all of a sudden, and planted a kiss on his lips squarely. It was Peggy's idea to marry her mother to the Lord, who didn't care much for anything but spiders and looked like John B. Moran, lacking something of the famous prosecutor's daring.

In order to carry out the scheme she reported that she (Peggy) had been married to Jimmy, who had gone back to his flat in London. Peggy went to London and stayed all night in Jimmy's flat. He wasn't there, of course, but she was seen, and it wasn't known Jimmy wasn't there, and there was bushels of trouble because of this all-of-a-sudden episode.

Finally it was all fixed up by Peggy's mother's engagement to the spider-loving Lord, and Peggy and Jimmy agreeing to get married. Miss Crossman was excellent as the pretty Irish girl, and Frank Gillmore as Jimmy Keppel was a manly, straightforward and sensible young fellow under difficulties. Ernest Stallard played the part of the Lord effectively.

The play itself, "All-of-a-Sudden Peggy," is by Ernest Denny, and has an ingenious plot and some very sparkling dialogue. At times it gets a trifle broad, but the clever acting of Miss Crossman saved it from any tinge of unpleasantness.

POLLY PICKLE'S PETS PLEASING PATRONS

A cat, a dog, an elephant, a parrot and a Teddy Bear. Could anyone find a more suitable set of animals to please children, or even grown folks? These characters are all at Keith's this week and give opportunity for some of the most clever animal impersonating ever seen in Boston. This remarkable company is presented in "Polly Pickle's Pets in Petland." It is Joseph Hart's Pantomime Company, headed by Eulalie Young, as Polly Pickle, "a girl."

There are many other acts on the bill, but Volta is one of the biggest hits of all. His stunts are startlingly sensational, and his wonderful power with electricity is amazing. He allows more volts to pass through him than are used at electrocutions of criminals. Among the others are Eva Williams and Jac Tucker, the Duffin Redcay Troupe, one of whom turns a triple somersault; George Wilson, Mme. Juliette Pierrepont, John McVeigh and Nellie Daly and William A. Inman and company.

"WIZARD OF OZ" TURNS 'EM AWAY

"The Wizard of Oz," at its second appearance in this city last evening, was received with the same enthusiasm and applause at the Globe Theatre as when it caused such a furore among theatre-goers last year. The play is the original, with a few changes in the songs which are very catchy and harmonious. George Stone, brother of Fred, the original straw man, was certainly an amusing character. He was equal to his brother in the terpsichorean art, and fully as double-jointed, causing a continuous roar all through the play. Anna Wilkes as the Kansas girl did herself credit, likewise her hideous cow, Imogene. Zoa Mathews has shown herself a second Ophelia in her rambling and lunatic manners, combined with her splendid voice. The show bids fair to have a packed house during its limited engagement, if one may judge from the numbers who were turned away last night.

'CAPT. JINKS' REVIVES OLD MEMORIES

"The good old days," when reporters wore high hats, women wore bustles and the ballet was made up of dames of all sizes and ages were revived at the Colonial Theatre last evening, when Ethel Barrymore played "Captain Jinks," the Fitch comedy in which she first became famous. It was an admirable performance in every particular. Miss Barrymore appearing to be in excellent spirits. Her delightful love affair with Captain Jinks was made absorbing in its intensity and delicious in its comedy. Except for a habit of speaking in too low a key, Miss Barrymore achieved great success. Bruce McRea's Captain Jinks was ideal. He made him just the sort of manly, open-hearted, chivalrous fellow that one could easily fall in love with. In fact, every one of the characters was finely drawn, and it was worth a week's pay just to see the ballet "girls" at their rehearsal. Those who saw Miss Barrymore five years ago in the character of Mme. Trentoni marvel at her development in all the arts of the actress.

THE TESTIMONY OF CLERGYMAN

Ministers of the gospel are not easily deceived and gulled. As a class, they are the most discerning of men, and the last men in the world to be bamboozled by frauds and quacks. They detect imposition and humbug in medical practice quicker than a lynx-eyed bank teller can detect a counterfeit or forgery. And they are truthful. They extol the Osmo-Chemic system because they feel it is to be among the most useful and helpful of all humanitarian enterprises. They would no more commend a medical institute conducted by the cunning grafters and polished robbers of the profession than they would commend a red-light gambling house as a business resort. The care and attention that invalids receive at the offices of the Osmo-Chemic system of medicine is as good as the world affords.

The Rev. D. C. Bixby, Baptist minister for seven years, preached the gospel in Haverhill, Mass., where he is now located. Writes under date of January, 1907:

"Osmo-Chemic Physicians:

"Dear Sirs—I had a cancer on my tongue. A friend of mine, a Mrs. Cleaves of Montague, Me., whom you had cured of cancer, after it had been cut out twice and returned; Mrs. A. M. Emery, East Haverhill, Mass., as well as other friends whom you cured of tumors, caused me to decide to take your treatment, and you cured me. If anyone doubts your ability to cure cancer refer them to me or the many other grateful ones whom you have cured. Yours truly,

"REV. D. C. BIXBY."

"Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 1907."

AIM AND OBJECT

It has been remarked by thinking people that the Osmo-Chemic Physicians advertisements in the daily newspapers are different from the average medical advertisement.

There is nothing in the Osmo-Chemic advertisement that savors of vanity, bombast or selfish eulogism.

The Osmo-Chemic Physicians are regular graduates from regular medical colleges in good standing.

They hold the indorsement of the State Medical Examining Board, which proves that they are capable of treating disease; and have a good knowledge of medicine and surgery, as taught in the regular medical schools.

In all the years of their practice in Massachusetts they have published the result of their treatment in the words of the patients who were cured, giving names and addresses, so that those interested could investigate for themselves. These testimonials were from people in every walk of life, from the doctor who aids in bringing the little baby into the world, all through the various occupations of mankind, to the exalted profession of the ministers of God, who lighten the burden of the dying with promises of peace everlasting.

The Osmo-Chemic Physicians have never advocated the high fees of medical societies which withhold the tried skill of the practiced physician from those without a full purse. They do not belong to the medical trust. They simply ask a small fee so that self-respecting men and women can take advantage of the blessing of the Osmo-Chemic treatment, without feeling the degradation of being an object of charity.

The Osmo-Chemic offices are equipped with the latest appliances for treating chronic disease. These are so expensive that it is impossible for the average physician to use them, even if he were familiar with them.

The cured patients of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians are their best advertisements, and the testimonials published in the daily press are printed there to spread the news of these cures, as can be done by no other method. To make known to the sick everywhere that although the family physician, the so-called specialist and the patent drug store remedy have failed to cure, there is still the ripe skill of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians and the marvellous Osmo-Chemic equipment to call to their aid before all hope is lost.

THE OSMO-CHEMIC SYSTEM OF MEDICINE Permanent offices, Suite 8, 9, 10, entrance No. 18 Boylston st., Boston, Mass. Send 2c. stamp for book on chronic disease. Office Hours—9 A. M. to 12 M., 2 to 4 and 6 to 8 P. M. daily. Closed Sundays.

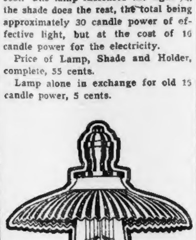
The New Science of Electric Lighting

THE NEW GEM LAMP WITH PRISMATIC REFLECTOR SHADE.

The use of this lamp and the special Reflector practically doubles your effective light without increasing the cost. The lamp increases the light ¼, the shade does the rest, the total being approximately 30 candle power of effective light, but at the cost of 16 candle power for the electricity.

Price of Lamp, Shade and Holder, complete, 55 cents.

Lamp alone in exchange for old 15 candle power, 5 cents.



THE NEW TANTALUM LAMP WITH PRISMATIC REFLECTOR SHADE.

This lamp increases the light over ¼, and the new Reflector increases the total effective light to approximately 35 candle power, but at the cost of 16 candle power for the electricity.

Can be used on direct current circuits north of Northampton street, ONLY.

Price of Lamp, Shade and Holder, complete, 20 cents.

Lamp alone in exchange for 16 candle power, 30 cents.

Doubling the effective light—but not the bills.

There are two new incandescent lamps which we offer our customers at a fraction of what they cost us—the difference between the wholesale price and our price being our contribution towards continuing to uphold the electric lighting pre-eminence of Greater Boston.

At present we can secure only a few thousand GEM lamps.

Within a year, we hope our entire supply of incandescent lamps can be GEMS. Then we will give free renewals, as we do now of the regular 16 candle power lamps. Meantime the slight excess price over the regular lamp exchange will be lowered as the supply of GEM lamps increases to balance supply and demand. A nominal premium over the regular lamp exchange of 5 cents is meantime charged for GEM lamps, while the more expensive Tantalum is 30 cents each in exchange for regular lamps to Edison Light customers only.

The wholesale price in the open market for these lamps is 22½ and 54 cents each, respectively. But—

These lamps consume the same amount of current as a 16 candle power lamp, yet give at least one-quarter more light.

With the new Prismatic Reflector shades, which throw all the light rays in the useful direction, our patrons will secure about 32 candle power of effective light at the cost of a regular 16 candle power lamp for electricity. The new shades with holders are retailed by us at wholesale price—50 cents each.

Without charge, we will send our district representative to give full information and advice on increasing your lighting, or burning fewer lamps by the new method, as you may desire.

POSED BY JOSEPH A. HICKS TO ILLUSTRATE HOW HE WAS MALTREATED AT FOXBORO.

"The beating I received sent me to the 'dead house' the second time I was kicked, punched and choked; and one attendant stamped upon my throat with his foot, upon which I lost consciousness. After both beatings I was carried out for dead on the following morning, but somehow I came back to partial strength and activity. My broken ribs I believe are but imperfectly knit, since I received no surgical attention. My chest is so painful to this day that I am incapable of proper use of my left arm."—From testimony by Hicks before Governor's Council investigating conditions at Foxboro.

"Once they beat me when I couldn't eat, and, to hold my jaws open so as to pour in liquid food, they thrust a stick which might have been sawed from the end of a broom handle, into my mouth, and so far down my throat that I was choked. Then I got the knee in the solar plexus again, so hard that the attendant who did it was deluged with the contents of my throat and stomach."—From Hicks's testimony before Governor's Council.

TELLS OF THE HORRORS IN FOXBORO "SUICIDE ROW"

Witness Before Governor's Council Recites Details of Cruel Treatment of Inmates.

Powerful poisons were always left within the reach of patients in Ward D, the "suicide" ward, at Foxboro Hospital, according to a witness who appeared before Lieutenant Governor Draper and the members of the Governor's Council who are investigating that institution when the case was taken up to-day.

The witness said that he had formerly been a private in Company C of the 7th United States Infantry and was committed to Foxboro at his own request in 1903. The name of the witness was guarded by Lieutenant-Governor Draper. While in the institution the witness said that he was a ward man part of the time and was also a general assistant.

Poison in Easy Reach.

He described in detail how the poisons which had been prescribed in doses for patients were afterwards left within easy reach so that if a patient tired of life he had the means at hand to end his suffering.

"I was given eggs but once in two years," said the witness. He understood, as did the other patients, that the eggs were the property of Mrs. Woodbury.

"There were three attendants in Ward D at one time," he testified. "But this force was later reduced to one. Most of the patients, when they were sick, were given a diet of pork and beans.

"I worked at Mrs. Woodbury's house for six months and during that time most of the produce raised on the farm was served on Mrs. Woodbury's table. The patients were given skimmed milk and 125 men were allowed only five pounds of butter a day.

Tells of Tragedy.

"A man named Hagerty died at the hospital while I was there. I once saw an attendant with his knee on Hagerty's stomach, choking and punching him. That was in the afternoon. He died that night from hemorrhages.

"In the case of a man named Vinal, attendants Barry and Grant would strike him and throw him down because the man had delusions that his wife was in the yard and wanted to look out of the window to see her. Instead of pulling him away they would strike him, knocking him to the floor and drag him away.

Says Engineer Drunk.

"The engineer of the shop was drunk about all the time, and the drawers in the workshop were filled with empty whiskey bottles."

Joseph A. Icks, another patient, has already told about his experiences with the poison meal at Foxboro.

"They gave me the poison," said Hicks. "They also beat me twice until I was sent to the 'dead house.' An attendant gave me salmonsalts to drink. I took it in the belief that it was a dose of medicine for my cause. I realized after I had taken it that something was wrong, and by the use of hot water cleared my stomach."

Here are some of the churchmen's opinions:

"It is a disgrace to our civilization"—The Rev. Alexander Mann.

Bishop's Objection.

"I look upon the exceptions to its production as well taken."—Bishop Jagger.

"Anything that is mixed up with Wilde is liable to be bad."—The Rev. Charles A. Crane.

Manager Lawrence A. McCarty of the Boston Theatre thinks the play in the amended form should be given.

"It is generally acknowledged to be the most important musical production since the Wagner operas," said Mr. McCarty, "and because a few supersensitive purists have made such a hue and cry about it there is no reason why real music lovers should be cheated of this work."

DEMOCRATIC ALDERMEN GET ALL THE PLUMS

A Democratic chairman of the Board of Aldermen, should the members of that party finally get together and elect one, will have very little power to exercise during the remainder of the year. The appointment of the committees of the board, the most important function of the chairman, has been resolved by Acting Chairman William Berwin.

Alderman Berwin has now completed the makeup of the committees for the current year, appointing the members of the Joint standing and Joint special committees of the board. The Democrats are given control of all the most important joint standing committees.

The joint standing committee on appropriations will consist on the part of the aldermen of Draper, Bangs, Corbey, Wilson, Baldwin, Bell, Clark and Leary; on claims, Clark, Bangs, Draper, Baldwin and Woods; on Dunns, Bangs, Whelton, Corsey, Bell, Baldwin, Clark and Woods.

The board took two ballots, the twelfth and thirteenth of the year, for chairman yesterday, but Aldermen John E. Baldwin still lacked one vote of election.

BOSTON WILL BE GIVEN A NEW "SALOME"

The "Salome" that Boston will see when Henry Conried brings his grand opera company here will be a decided purged and purest edition. In deference to the wishes of the opera-going public in New York, the impresario has decided to eliminate the objectionable features of the wild and realistic opera.

When "Salome" is given in Boston Miss Proctor, the prima donna, will not fondle and kiss the severed head of John the Baptist as it lies on a golden charger, as she did in New York. She will make her gesture suddenly with the silver raised high over her head. Then she will quickly deposit it behind a stone pillar of the stage setting and continue her singing. It is believed that by making this important change and altering the version of the play in several ways all unpleasant features will be banished.

Churchmen Condemn.

Prominent clergymen of Boston are unanimous in their condemnation of the opera as given in New York.

CLAIM TUCKER ARREST MONEY

An echo of the Mabel Page murder, and the electrocution of Charles L. Tucker for it, is heard in Weston, where claimants have appeared for the reward of $2,500 which the Selectmen of the town offered for the arrest of the guilty person.

One of the half dozen or more persons who believe that they are entitled to at least a part of the money is Arthur Woodward of Quincy, in whose wagon Tucker and Mabel Walker took a ride on the afternoon of the tragedy, after which the driver found a knife sheath that fitted the blade that was held to have been used in the crime.

Another who is under consideration by the Selectmen is Constable T. J. McAuliffe of Weston, who gave the authorities early information which led them to make in-

TO GIVE "A DOLL'S HOUSE."

Ethel Barrymore will give a decided novelty at the Colonial Theatre Thursday afternoon when a special matinee will afford her first opportunity of appearing as Nora in "A Doll's House." The presentation of this Ibsen drama will be one of the most notable that Miss Barrymore has ever made here.

Dividends---King-Crowther Corporation

Next Monday, Feb. 4th, the board of directors of the King-Crowther Corporation will meet to take action upon—

Declaration of dividends from the large accumulated earnings of the past seven months;

President's report;

Treasurer's report;

Advance to approximately, if not quite, par, $100 a share, of the stock of the corporation, now quoted at $65 a share.

The intervening week offers the most favorable opportunity that will ever be afforded to make an investment in the stock of the King-Crowther Corporation, which is still quoted at but 65% of its par value.

In view of the approaching inauguration of satisfactory and ever-increasing dividend distributions among its stockholders, I cannot guarantee to make the present quotation of $65 a share for the stock of the King-Crowther Corporation longer than the close of business at my office Monday, February 4th, nor can I extend the assurance to the investing public that the quotation after that date will be less than its par value, $100 a share.

The progress made by the King-Crowther Corporation in the past seven months is absolutely without a parallel, so far as I know, even in the marvelous history of the oil industry.

Last June it had 14 test wells that had been put down on its estate of approximately 70,000 acres in southwestern Texas. Today it has 476 producing oil wells, and under the terms of its contract with the former owners of its properties in Ohio and Indiana acquired July 1st last, 24 more wells of fresh production remain to be delivered to it by July 1st next without cost to the King-Crowther Corporation, making its total exactly 500 wells. These 500 wells represent, as all oil men know, at the lowest possible estimate, an original investment in drilling and equipment of from $1,000 to $10,000 apiece.

In addition to the 462 existing producing oil wells in its Ohio-Indiana acquisition (taking no account of the 24 that remain to be drilled to its order and delivered to it without cost under its contract), the King-Crowther Corporation controls 6308 additional acres of oil-bearing lands, extending from one end to the other of the Lima-Indiana field, and quick assets in houses, tanks, pumping stations, derricks, drilling rigs, piping, rods, machinery and general equipment alone to the estimated value of $500,000 or more.

These vast additions to its main original holdings in southwest Texas, acquired by its treasury resources without increasing its capitalization a dollar and without placing the assessment of a dollar on a single stockholder, represent, in my opinion, an enrichment to its stockholders easily the equivalent of its $3,000,000 capitalization.

I believe I do the average American corporation of similar capitalization no injustice when I say that it would not have undertaken the acquisitions made by the King-Crowther Corporation, under all the circumstances, without first having doubled its capitalization.

I am just as much convinced now as ever that the main original holdings of the King-Crowther Corporation, with their approximately 70,000 acres, with their locations for 5000 oil wells, with their vast deposits of Kaolin in sight, with their great coal deposits in sight, with their agricultural and ranching lands, with their natural gas, with their thousands of dollars expended in development work, resulting in the town of Crowther and its water works and ice manufacturing plants, are a conservative basis for the corporation's original and present $3,000,000 capitalization.

While I shall always hold that the Texas division represents by far a more valuable property than the Ohio-Indiana division, I no less hold the opinion that the latter property with its 462 producing wells and an abundance of additional equipments and with locations for from 1000 to 1700 more wells would not be excessively capitalized independently at $3,000,000.

My earnest and steadfast conviction is that in these magnificent properties, operated at a distance of over 1500 miles from each other, or the width of the continent at its narrowest point, the King-Crowther Corporation, with its unincreased capitalization of $3,000,000, has holdings for development richly deserving of a $3,000,000 capitalization in each instance.

In the past seven months the King-Crowther Corporation has leaped to the position of one of the largest earning corporations, on the basis of its capitalization, in the United States.

The accumulating earnings of the past seven months have been rapid and all signs point to those of the months to come growing even more rapidly.

Inasmuch as the King-Crowther Corporation has been run, under my presidency, wholly and solely in the interests of its stockholders, it is my opinion that it is now in a position to make a dividend declaration and at the same time carry forward the work of development and expansion uninterruptedly from the growing net profits of the business. The forthcoming dividend to be declared will therefore be as large a one as the active and evolutionary state of this rapidly progressing corporation will admit—a dividend that will be in all respects eminently satisfactory to every holder of this valuable stock.

This is a passing and fleeting opportunity—an opportunity that once passed cannot be recalled.

The stock of the King-Crowther Corporation, par value $100 a share, is quoted for the remainder of the coming week at $65 a share. I cannot guarantee to deliver a share of the stock at that quotation after the close of business next Monday, Feb. 4. I cannot guarantee to deliver a share of the stock at less than its par value of $100 a share after that date.

With the King-Crowther Corporation making dividend distributions at the rate of 5 per cent. the present quotation of $65 a share means a net investment yield of 7.69 per cent. A 10 per cent. dividend rate would mean a net return of 15.38 per cent. My life's ambition is to make the King-Crowther Corporation pay dividends equal in rate to those sustained for so many years by the Standard Oil Company—dividends that the oil industry stands almost alone in its ability to pay.

This is the only corporation to which I have ever given my name. All that I have and—what is infinitely more to me—all that I am is behind the King-Crowther Corporation, with the hope and the ideal of making it a model American corporation.

On the basis of the printed page—on the basis of statements that are made to stand, with which to vindicate me or confront and confuse me—on the basis of a publicity as binding as that of a contract—on the basis of my business, the largest financial agency in the United States and the widest known financial house of any description located in Boston or New England—over my personal signature and on the basis of all that I have achieved and all that I stand for, I recommend with an earnestness and sincerity never greater at any moment of my life an investment in the stock of the King-Crowther Corporation at this the most favorable time which will be offered.

SEMI-EMPIRE GOWN DIRECT FROM PARIS

THIS IS THE NEWEST PARISIAN MODIFICATION OF THE POPULAR EMPIRE GOWN, FOR EVENING WEAR.

Don't Throw Away Empty Tin Cans

THERE is a use for everything, and thriftily those containing oil, now put when even empty this have many uses set down to leave an unsightly mark. Apart from the generally accepted fact that the contents of one of receptacles for butter and lard, after taking a dose the medicine it does readily and adds and cakes, self remains hidden until the "next time."

An empty coffee tin is excellent to receive a sponge bag when travelling. A decorations in rooms by joining three pound tin will hold a nail brush, flannel connected ones together and utilizing them and sponge, and you will find it cheap and for the display of tall grasses, ferns and waterproof. If you add a ream of enamel long-stemmed flowers. Select the tins and the sponge the necessary space designed by have holes in them to let the tops, through bore holes in them to let the tops, through put the top of the tin, and so keep it dry. Be firmly together, making the wire into of joint will make the lid no less tightly.

Another idea for self-colored tins is to paint them artistically with white enamel, and by dark colors as embroidery. Unpainted enamel tins are by no means to be despised, for when they need be polished clear ash in soft soap, cold water and whiting, then rinsed in plenty of clear water, and dried in sawdust, they will present any possible appearance.

Success Depends on Hard Work, Not on So-Called Luck

By Beatrice Fairfax

"ISN'T that just my luck?" I heard a girl exclaim the other day when something had gone wrong.

Now, girls, there is no such thing as "luck" in that sense of the word.

Some people have a bad habit of blaming it all on "luck" when things go wrong, and to nine cases out of ten it is their carelessness or neglect on their own part that the mistake has occurred. But it's very comforting to blame it on "luck," it relieves one of such responsibility.

If you work hard and put all your effort and interest into what you are striving for, and still things do not turn out all right, don't say that it is because you are unlucky.

It is because you have not done it quite in the right way, or because the time is not ripe for you to succeed.

If another girl is promoted above you don't say that it is because she is more lucky than you are; it is because she is more fitted to hold the position.

A Very Bad Habit

WHEN so-called "luck" comes by favoritism it is not luck at all, for it is not likely to last.

Your life is largely what you make it. If you go on your way determined to make the best of your opportunities and of yourself, you won't have to depend upon "luck" very much.

One great secret of getting on well lies in willingness. The girl who is willing and obliging usually makes a success of her life.

At the restaurant where I usually take my luncheon I see a great many young business women. I cannot help but overhear a good deal of their talk, and the majority of them do a good deal of complaining.

"He thinks I am too easy and just heaps up the work on me," "He need not think I'm going to do any extra work," "I'll let him see I can't be imposed upon," are remarks I frequently hear.

Not Luck at All

FEW of the girls seem to be in love with their work or much interested in it.

It's a very bad habit, girls, this of always whining over your work. If conditions are really unsatisfactory and you think your employer can better them, go to him and put the facts before him, reasonably and civilly.

If he will not better them, then go some place else, but don't spoil your nature by constant complaining.

If you are always ready to take offence and to find the worst side of everything you will not have any trouble in doing so.

Be grateful to your youth and your health, and do your best to hold both as long as possible.

A whining expression will age you in looks in no time. Do try and look cheerful; people do so love a cheerful person. Men especially dislike a doleful, complaining woman.

And, above all, depend upon your own efforts and not upon "luck."

CHOCOLATE ICING

BOIL a cupful of sugar and water until it threads and beat it quickly over the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs, adding a few drops of flavoring. Over warm water melt one square of unsweetened chocolate with smooth, adding one-half a teaspoonful of powdered sugar, and when the icing is cool enough spread the white icing thickly over the cake and cover with a generous layer of the chocolate.

TO MARK BED LINEN

EMBROIDERED marking for sheets as a rule is placed in the centre of the width of the sheet and far enough down so that when the sheet is turned down, for, in most cases are marked in the centre of the final hem. Letters of this sheet are about two inches in height. For the name from one to one and a half. For every-day bedding the English expedient of embroidering the corners with tape to prevent the sheets from being torn on the line is a good one. The tape is laid on flat and hemmed down for two or three inches each side of the corner.

Expert Advice on Health and Beauty

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Although I get very tired I am so nervous when bedtime comes that it seems almost impossible for me to sleep. I am losing much rest on this account, and since you have helped so many I thought you might tell me what to do to get relief.

SHOP GIRL.

IF you will sponge your entire body with the following mixture when you are nervously tired I think you will find it conducive to refreshing sleep. Sea salt, four ounces; pure alcohol, eight ounces; spirit of ammonia, two ounces; spirit of camphor, two ounces; sufficient hot water in which the salt has been dissolved, to make a quart of the liquid. Shake well and put in a bottle, to be used when needed. Shake well each time before using.

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I wish you would tell me how henna is used on the hair.

MRS. T. R. M.

STEEP an ounce of henna leaves in a pint of boiling water for twenty minutes. Let it stand until it gets cold, then strain the liquid. Apply to the hair with a small sponge. The henna will be apt to stain the scalp, but such stain may easily be removed with soap and water.

SCRUBBING BOARD FLOORS

PLENTY of soap and cold water, and a soda, are the secrets of success in washing board floors, and the wood must be scrubbed the way of the grain, and not round and round, if you want to get the dirt off. Is Woman More Honest Than Man?

ARE women more honest than men? Mrs. Vinona F. Church, cashier of the Bank of Joplin, Mo., says they are. What do you think about it?

Mrs. Church ought to know. She is a banker and has come into daily contact with both men and women in her business. She has reached the conclusion that women are superior to men in honesty.

She isn't afraid to tell the men so, either. Attention was directed to Mrs. Church's views as a result of an address she made before the National Bankers' Association in St. Louis. She then declared that women's qualifications for the banking business surpassed those possessed by men, the latter being inferior in honesty as well as other respects.

Mrs. Church has occupied every position in a bank up to and including that of cashier, and is probably the only woman general bank in the world—one with a capitalization of $5,000 and deposits of over $275,000.

"Men Not Necessary"

"Men are handy around a bank," she said when asked to add to the reasons advanced in her address. "They are useful in opening their overcoats and in carrying out the heavy books, and in replacing them when business hours close. But necessary? Oh, with a wave of the hand embracing a staff of six young women, who, with two assistants, transact all the business of the bank, "well, that's another question."

Women are naturally adapted to the banking business. Their very natures are seemingly molded to fit into the financial work of a bank, and that is why I think men are handy to have around, but not necessary. I believe my faith in women as bankers is justified, and these are my reasons why:

"In the first place, women have highly developed ideas of honesty, as a rule, and this honesty makes them particularly worthy of positions of trust, such as a bank imposed. Personally their overpowering sense of honesty is the characteristic, but it is a rule, I believe, that fewer women than men are dishonest in money matters. And honesty is the chief requisite of a banker, in this, at least, if not in other things, the woman ought to be a better banker than a man.

Woman Bank Official Declares They Are. What Do You Think About the Question?

"But I do not believe this is the only qualification she possesses that makes her better fitted for banking business than men. Sterling integrity is as necessary as honesty in a banking official, and I believe woman has this qualification in its highest development. Few women are not reared to bear themselves in a manner above reproach, and few of them would condescend to lower themselves by an act that would reflect upon their integrity, either in social or business life.

Faithful to a Trust

"Faithfulness to a trust is another essential in the character of a bank official. Perhaps we may be wrong, perhaps the wise ot times, but I do not think that anyone will deny that woman possesses the characteristic of faithfulness to her duty, to a trust, to a higher development that does a man. I believe that woman's great desire to rise in order to accept a position of trust in the business world is her steadfast faithfulness, which has been tried in millions of ways and proved worthy, and always to the credit of the woman.

"One of the most essential requirements of a bank official is that of courtesy and affability. Some of the most successful men in business are easily traced to the influence of those qualities of a shrewd saleswoman. The banker thrives upon the trust that is his honesty and integrity and faithfulness by his patrons, but there are others who have the same confidence of the public and the account is liable to go elsewhere unless the banker is courteous and polite to his patrons.

Courteous to All

"Woman possesses this trait in its highest development. By nature she is inclined to be tolerant and to treat all with the greatest civility, born of her greater and no less firm determination. It is difficult to find elsewhere this characteristic in all whom she meets. This characteristic of woman makes her invaluable in banks in cities where women have become well known by name for their accomplishments thrift and uncertain amount of knowledge which a woman is by nature driven to displaying her ignorance, will fly from the man banker where she would gladly seek the woman behind the wicket with the same grace and self-composure as in her drawing room, and would

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

BE CAUTIOUS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady twenty-two years old, and have been keeping company with a young man of about the same age for about three years.

We have each other dearly and have decided to get married in the near future. My people object because this young man is an Italian, but American born, and I am American. Do you think I would be happy as his wife and happy if I married against my parents' wishes?

F. M.

IT is very sad to marry against your parents' wishes, but if you have known the young man for three years and found him respectable and worthy of you, your parents should consider the matter very seriously before they stand in the way of your happiness. Their objection to your friend's nationality is not any reason for your questioning your future happiness if you are companionable and really in love with each other.

TIME MAY DO IT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Will you kindly advise me how I should effect a reconciliation with a girl who I am very much in love with. We had a falling out about two months ago, and she returned several little presents I gave her, also all the letters which I had written to her. I have written to her several times asking her to be friends, but she has returned all the letters unopened. I feel very miserable, as I dearly love her and would do anything to win her regard. I know she still likes me, for one of my friends told me that the young lady would not allow anyone to say a word against me.

L. W. M.

PERHAPS if you keep assuring her of your sincere regard she will relent in time. Why not get the mutual friend you mention to tell her how ankious you are for a reconciliation?

WRITE AND EXPLAIN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have had a falling out with a young man, which was wholly of my fault, and as I care very much for him would like to be on good terms with him once more. I am in a quandary what to do. Shall I write to him or wait for him? Would you think it nice and proper to write?

ANXIOUS.

WRITE a little note saying that you realize that you were in fault and that you are sorry. Then you will break the ice and make your share toward a reconciliation.

A FAIR CHANCE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Recently I made an appointment with a young woman, which she failed

ONYX has come into favor with fashionable women, being fashioned into round, massive bracelets like those antique armlets which women of Rome and Greece used to wear. The milky transparency of this stone, with its fantastic veinings, makes it most effective. "The Bracebridge Diamonds," Or, The Heart of a Woman'.

A Thrilling Romance of Love and Hate, Adventure and Intrigue

SYNOPSIS

FRANK (the hero) and Reginald Brace bridge (cousins) meet a marvelously beautiful woman on the piazza at Saratoga. Woman, much preoccupied, exhibits abject terror upon sighting among party of new arrivals a foreign looking man. Frank learns she is Mme. Vera Slavinsky. Later a woman's scream attracts Frank to the grounds. He discovers Vera in heated altercation with the foreigner (Dr. Carl Mueller), the latter commanding that she surrender to him "a bit of paper and a stone." Colman has "missing fragment" and that "the others were then in the hotel." Vera denies she has them with her. Mueller in rage attacks her.

Frank rushes to the defence, and in a fierce struggle both men show knowledge of a wrestling trick which is a secret of the Bracebridge family. Frank is almost exhausted when Vera plunges a hypodermic needle into Mueller, and renders him unconscious. She wins Frank's promise to assist her, and gives him a ring with permission to open it when he thinks the right time has come.

CHAPTER V.

Killed in Runaway.

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner.

THE telegram which Frank Bracebridge held in his hand read thus:

"James Bracebridge died at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Killed in runaway. Wire instructions.

"BANKER."

Reginald uttered a cry of horror, and then to Frank's amazement and disgust, his gave a low whistle.

"That means I'm the heir and won't have any more of this nonsense about money," he said. Then noticing his cousin's shocked look, he continued, airily:

"Now, Frank, don't draw such a long face. You know very well I'm not fond of you. You ought to have been his son; you were just his style. I am awfully sorry, of course, but you can't expect me to worry much about a man who hasn't given me a decent word for ten years and kept me on short allowance all the time.

"Not another word from you like that, Reg," said Frank sternly. "If you haven't any decency yourself, you will consider my feelings and not give occasion for a scandal to these gaping folks about here."

Cowed and somewhat ashamed of himself, Reginald kept silent and the two cousins made their way to the hotel.

"How can we get a train?" said Frank to the clerk, to whom the news had already been carried.

"In an hour," said the clerk. "Can we help you any?"

Leave for New York

"Send a man up to assist with the packing, a telegraph messenger and some blanks," said Frank.

The two cousins went to their rooms. Frank sent several telegrams of instructions, superintended the packing and then with Reginald was got on the train down to the station.

Reginald slept soundly until New York was reached, but Frank lay awake pondering. He had been the old man's favorite, been like his own lost father to him. He, not Reginald, had been the old man's confidant in many things concerning the one great secret of the Bracebridges.

Frank knew there was much left unsold, but he felt sure his uncle had done as he had promised years ago and revealed the whole of the mystery of the Bracebridges to him in a letter.

"After my death look for the document that will tell you everything I have not told you," old James Bracebridge had said once, and Frank remembered his words.

The cousins arrived in New York, and then went straight to the suburban home of the Bracebridge and built accordingly to his own ideas when he first gained wealth.

The home of Frank's father, on Erie street, which he had inherited, and in which he kept bachelor's hall, was easily accessible from the heart of the city, but was also upon the shore of the noble Hudson.

Reginald completely disgusted Frank with the callous indifference he displayed to his father's death.

Upon the day of his father's funeral he displayed the smallest interest at the graveside his face wore a bored expression, and when the last clod fell upon the coffin he turned away with an expression of relief and stepped briskly up to Frank's side.

The Will

"Did you draw up the will?" he asked.

"I did," Frank replied, coldly.

"Good," said Reginald. "Let us have the reading of it over as soon as possible. I want to catch the next train back. The boys will be in to play poker to-night. On the way, who are the executors?"

"There is only one," Frank drank replied.

"Bravo," said Reginald, slapping Frank upon the back. "I have been in hard luck lately. Let me have $500 before I go, that's a good chap."

Frank looked at the lad in dismay, not unmingled with supreme disgust. "The callous young monster," he said to himself; then aloud, and in his sternest manner, said: "Better wait and hear the will read. I will discuss the matter with you then."

"Oh, all right," said Reginald. "You needn't be nasty about it, though."

Frank made no reply to that, and the two cousins relapsed into a moody silence. Arrived there Reginald was all impatience to get the reading over and determined it, but Frank did not hurry. He knew the conditions of the will and dreaded the storm that would break when Reginald heard them.

There were various small bequests to servants employed by James Bracebridge, and these Frank summoned to the library. Quite half an hour was consumed in this fashion, during which Reginald sat fidgeting on his chair, looking at his watch at short intervals and giving mouth to petulant expressions of impatience from time to time.

When all concerned were assembled at last, Frank read the will with studied deliberation, nodding pleasantly to housekeeper, butler, coachman and gardener, as he mentioned their names in turn.

At last he came to the clause affecting his cousin Reginald. Frank's voice trembled as he read:

The will gave all the real and personal estate possessed by James Bracebridge to his only son Reginald upon the following conditions:

That Reginald was not to come into his inheritance until he was twenty-five years of age.

That Frank, as sole executor and trustee, endowed with plenary power, was to pay him as little or as much as in his discretion he thought necessary during this long period of probation.

For his services in this respect Frank was to receive a legacy of $50,000.

By a further clause in the will, if Reginald should die without issue the whole estate of probably $20,000,000 was to go over to Frank.

Reginald listened open-mouthed as Frank read, and then sprang from his chair.

CHAPTER VI.

A Setback.

"It here, I say!" he shouted. "This is too ridiculous. I won't stand this."

"I am afraid you will have to put up with it," returned Frank curtly, and then, having dismissed the servants, he added:

"Your manner, Reginald, shocks me beyond measure. Have you no sense of decency that you talk of rushing away to card parties with your father's body hardly covered from sight?"

"What does it matter?" Reginald answered. "Where does a sense of decency come in? The governor is dead. No good to howl over it, is there? It won't bring him back with it. And now, my dear fellow, the dickens could you let him make such a rotten will? It can be upset, of course."

Frank's patience was nearly at an end. He smiled sardonically.

"By whom? Not you, certainly. The presumption of the law is that a sane man can deal with his property in any way he may think fit, as in the present instance, and you know, Reginald, that your father had good reason for making his will in the way he did."

"Reason," shouted Reginald. "No, he hadn't, either. He hadn't an ounce of good red blood in his body and he hadn't any sympathy with anybody who had. I had some scrapes, of course. But, great Cæsar, can't a boy have his fling? Why should he have taken offence at such trifles? He was a surly old curmudgeon, that's all, and he has treated me infamously."

Then he changed his tone and came close to Frank.

"You have always stood by me, Frank," he said. "You got a half lad sort. You will make things pleasant, I am sure. Let me have that $500," and he looked at his watch, "for I must be off in a very few minutes now."

Frank's patience was completely gone now. He faced Reginald sternly.

Not a Dollar

"You will get no $500 from me to-day," he said, in his sternest manner. "Not one single dollar. For of all the callous, unfeeling cubs I ever had to do with, you are easily in the front rank. I am exceedingly angry with you, and not a little disgusted, too, let me tell you. Don't forget that you are still in leading strings and that I am at the end of the strings and will exercise the power vested in me to curb your future behavior. You have made a very bad beginning to-day."

Reginald stared at him for an instant. Then his face darkened and he burst forth in a perfect fury of language.

"That is what you have been doing all these years, you blackguard, is it?" he snarled. "You have had my father's ear, have played the saint to your heart's content, you have been the sane, safe young man, the young man who never sleeps, the one who always attended strictly to business, who was always at hand to soothe and advise his uncle.

"Ah! I suppose you commiserated with him many times over the wickedness of his only son. I can see you now with your devilishly solemn air and your cursed sympathetic face advising my father to keep from hand on me.

"This scheme was never my father's. I see now; it was yours. You got him to get the property into your hands so that you could rob me at your leisure. Forty thousand dollars you get for your precious work. I'll wager now that you have your pockets with nearer five million by the time I get to be thirty years old."

"Reginald," his cousin interrupted, "do dare to say another word like that. You are beside yourself."

Reginald scarcely heard, almost shrieked. "What man wouldn't be beside himself, I'd like to know? Here I am twenty-one years old and must wait nine years before I come into my own.

"And all these years I must walk softly at the behest of a whining, snivelling, psalm-singing toady who has succeeded by years to oust me from my rightful place.

"Oh, you needn't draw your face and grind your teeth that way," Reginald continued, having worked himself up to an insane fury. "You would like to floor me where I stand, but you don't want to make a scene before the servants.

"But I don't care a tinker's dam for the servants or for anybody else in the world. I've been defrauded of my rights by you, and then in your insolence you send them and refuse to give me even a paltry stipend of what is rightly mine.

"I know what you are up to, my fellow. You are thinking of that last clause which says that if I die my money will have it all. I shall take precious care, my dear Cousin Frank, not to get myself into a position disgusting to me. Twenty million would make it worth while for even a respectable man to play the criminal lawyer to do a little trick with arsenic or ground glass.

"Reginald, are you mad?" his cousin demanded. "I have known you from pup but I warn you if you do not stop I shall call officers and have you hauled up in insane fury."

Reginald started at that, then strode to the door and opened it.

"I am going now," he said dramatically, "and may I be killed like a dog and my body treat like a dog's into a box if I ever voluntarily see you again."

So Reginald forth into the night, and Frank shuddered at the thought of the uncurbed passions, the misguided mania of his young cousin. The words of the curse Reginald had self-invoked rang in his ears. Months afterward they came back to him with vivid reality.

LEAGUE PLANS UNITED WAR ON BIENNIAL VOTE

"People's Lobby" Urged to Take Up the Fight at State House.

Permanent organization of the city committee of the Boston Independence League effected last night at a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting at the headquarters in the Shawmut building.

After a spirited and interesting discussion, resolutions were adopted condemning the resolve now before the Legislature in favor of biennial elections.

Declaring that the move for biennials was a step contrary to the spirit of American institutions, it was voted to request the state committee of the Independence League to instruct its legislative committee, the "People's lobby," to appear at the hearing to be given by the committee on Constitutional Amendments, at the State House, on the biennial resolve, and oppose it to the utmost of their ability.

A motion that every member of the League be requested to secure another member was unanimously adopted.

Robert T. Allen of Ward 20 was elected chairman of the city committee, William Peel of Ward 7 vice-chairman, Mark A. Collins of Ward 14 secretary and A. L. Leeman of Ward 23 treasurer.

A constitution and rules for the organization were adopted. It was voted to have the city committee officers and the chairmen of the various ward committees constitute the executive committee. A special committee of five was appointed to carry on the work of organization throughout the city and to build up the present ward leagues.

The secretary reported that twenty-one of the twenty-five wards in the city were thoroughly organized at the present time. The committee on organization was instructed to proceed without delay with the work of strengthening the ward leagues and to report ways and means to the city committee for carrying on the work in the most successful way.

Heiress Bride In Secret Wedding.

North Attleboro Maid Refuses Hand of Rich Suitor to Marry Poor Automobile Salesman

Special to the Boston American.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Jan. 29.—Having refused the hand of wealthy Charles McKelvey, son of one of the Pittsburg steel kings, Mrs. Clifton Clarke Edwards, who until Saturday was Miss Eva Blanche Curtis, daughter of H. H. Curtis, a millionaire jewelry manufacturer of this town, is now enjoying a honeymoon in the South after her elopement with a poor automobile salesman.

The young couple stole away to Providence, and were married on Saturday. The mother and father of the bride were not informed of the affair until after the ceremony had been performed by the Rev. Arthur M. Aurock, pastor of All Saints' Memorial Church, Providence.

The bride took upon herself the duty of getting the parental forgiveness, telephoning it to the elder Curtis and begging his blessing.

From the Attleboro end of the wire Curtis heard the first intelligence and as the father expressed himself concerning his favorite daughter's runaway match in the end, however, the tearful voice of the bride won.

The romance sprang up between the pretty heiress and the struggling young salesman three Summers ago at Cottage City, now Oak Bluffs. Miss Curtis was spending her vacation at that place and was frequently seen with the rich Charles McKelvey of Pittsburg, though had it that McKelvey had proposed marriage to Miss Curtis, and though he had been refused, it was rumored he was gaining favor in the eyes of the girl.

Then Edwards appeared one day. He met Miss Curtis, and—from all that moonmy McKelvey was not given another look or word of encouragement. The young millionaire hurried to Pittsburg and wrote an appealing letter to Miss Curtis.

On reading the epistle she at once called him up on the long distance 'phone. The talk was lengthy, but she refused him point blank, and acknowledged her love for Edwards.

Then the receiver had been hung up it was three-quarters of an hour after Miss Curtis had begun to talk. The bill was $65. The girl had $12 in her purse. The telephone manager was at that time obdurate, and demanded full payment before she left the office, but later, when he called up the Curtis cottage, he allowed the girl to leave. A few minutes after a check for $53 arrived from her father, since the awful day at Oak Bluffs, Miss Curtis and Edwards have been inseparable. The relatives of the girl say they did not think the young people would marry secretly, though they were infatuated with each other.

The ceremony in Providence was witnessed by Mrs. Alpin Chisholm, wife of a North Attleboro jewelry manufacturer, and Walter H. Freeman of Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards will live at the Rhinebeck, 247 Friendship street, Providence.

Why We Deserve Your Confidence

The Rexall formulas have never been secret. We have always known them ourselves and have given them to thousands of customers. Right here is where Rexall Remedies have always done more to protect you than is even now required by the Pure Food and Drug Law.

You only know the dangerous drugs in other remedies—the rest of their formulas are still secret. You have always known everything in every Rexall Remedy.

No Rexall Remedy is a "cure-all"—there are 300 different remedies—one for each human ill—the most reliable and successful remedy for that ill proven by years of experience. We have sold these Rexall Remedies upon the squarest plan on which merchandise was ever sold. We have guaranteed to return the money to every purchaser who came back with the empty bottle or package and said that he or she was not satisfied—and we've never failed to live up to this guarantee.

The Pure Food Law did not necessitate any change in Rexall formulas—on the contrary it has set the stamp of approval upon them. Best of all, you can actually prove that Rexall Remedies are unchanged. You know their formulas four years ago, and you'll find them the same today!

Don't the Rexall Remedies deserve your confidence? Wouldn't you more readily trust a man whom you had proved to be naturally honest, than one who was honest because he had to be? You know that Rexall Remedies have been voluntarily manufactured and sold for four years in the very way that the law now declares to be the only right way.

FOR NERVES—AMERICANITIS ELIXIR

Rexall American'tis Elixir is one of the 300 Rexall Remedies. It is a tonic nerve food composed chiefly of free Phosphorus, Glycerophosphates, Iron Pyrophosphate and Quassia.

The wonderful results of this remedy are due to the fact that it supplies Phosphorus to the nerve cells in a condition in which it can be immediately and easily taken up by them.

The Glycerophosphates, actual nerve-tissue builders, are one of the most recent and valuable additions to the branch of medicine and unquestionably a more efficient remedy than the well-known Hypophosphites.

The Iron Pyrophosphates are the more easily assimilated form of iron which give tone and color, and the combined alkaloids of Cayenne Bark have a tonic effect on almost all the functions of the body. 75c. and $1.00 a bottle.

MOTOR BOATS RACE AT PALM BEACH TO-DAY

Special to the Boston American.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 29.—The opening races of the Palm Beach Power Boat Association are scheduled to-day.

Among the trophies offered this year is the Sir Thomas Dewar Shield, won last season by H. L. Bowden's Mercedes, who has again entered his boat. The Sparrow, owned by E. H. Godschalk, of Camden, N. J., will try for first place in some of the races; The Dixie, the Flyer, the Den and the Sleepless, of New York, and owned by Commodore J. Rogers Maxwell, Herman Brocard, H. J. Hoadley and Messrs. Smith and Mabley, are also entered. Other fast boats expected to take part in the events are the Wasp, the property of Hiram P. Yates, of Buffalo; the Possum, owned by Lieutenant Hugh L. Willoughby, of Philadelphia; the Pirate, belonging to A. R. Pearcek, of Pittsburg; the Standard, owned by Pierce McKinney, of Cleveland; the Secret, the property of E. C. Baynes; the Winifred II., owned by J. S. Clarke, of Ardmore, Pa.; the Katherine, the property of J. H. Middlebrook, Jr., of Boston, and the Bruiser, belonging to James K. Clarke, of Philadelphia. In addition the Stamford, Motor Works of Stamford, Conn., and the Manker-Hesvenner Motor Company of Chicago, have made entries.

A number of boats owned by Florida people will attempt to keep some of the trophies in the South for at least a year, until the next regatta, most of the prizes having to be won by the same contestant two years in succession before becoming his personal property. Mr. F. P. Smith, of Chicago, has entered a fresh model boat construction which he calls a hydro-curve hull boat, and the Zoest, an Italian winner, in addition to some trophies to carry across the Atlantic. Directly following the races, which continue to February 9, an elaborately planned illumination and fireworks will wind up the week of gayety.

After the crowd has reated for a few days it will move further south to Miami, where the Miami Motor Boat Association will hold its first annual regatta. This will be followed by the "big to the" race, which, being a new departure in long distance motor boating, will be closely watched by enthusiasts throughout the country. It will necessarily determine the efficiency of the motor boat in the open sea, for the course covers the one hundred and sixty miles from Miami to Nassau and crosses the Gulf Stream. As a consequence the following boats the United States steamer Scorpion has been detailed to cover the course with them and render the necessary assistance in case of accident of any kind. Upon the arrival of the boat long distance racer at Nassau there will be a motor boat regatta, for which the sunny waters of the bay there are admirably adapted.

DOVEY OFFERS $25,000 FOR KLING AND BROWN

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—"I will give $25,000 cash and a large bunch of players for Brown and Kling," said George Dovey, owner of the Boston National League club, to President Murphy of the local team today. "If this is not acceptable," the new manager said, "I will make a most pleasing offer for Reulbach and Hofman.

"Twenty years ago," continued Mr. Dovey, "the gentlemen whom I have succeeded at Boston pulled off the greatest deal of those bygone days—the $20,000 purchase of Clarkson and Kelly. I would fondly like to signalize my entry into the game at Boston by another big deal. Have the money ready, Mr. Murphy.

"If in my special ambition," resumed Mr. Dovey, "to have a team which, whether it wins the flag or not, can beat out Barney Dreyfuss."

Murphy declined to make any dicker with the Bostonian.

Later Mr. Dovey made an endeavor to secure Andeas, the great Infielder Combs, released to Des Moine. He wants him for a utility man.

While here the Hub manmate signed Pitchers Lindsman and Pfeffer and Infielder Howard.

Haley Fought Clever Battle

DELMONT WON

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 29.—Albert Delmont, the Boston boy, scored a close victory over Packey Haley, the Lynn bantam, at the end of twelve rounds of the cleverest fighting that has been seen at the Valley Falls A. C. Delmont had no great margin to spare when the three limit rounds up, and the decision in his favor rendered by Referee Murphy was greatly influenced by Delmont's strong finish.

In the last two rounds the Hub lad put on speed and just before the bell rang he floored the Britisher and was surely making the better fight then. In the early rounds of the first appearance of Haley in New England and the second in this country there was considerable curiosity in regard to his ability in comparison with the best on this side of the water, and in meeting Delmont his powers are fully tested.

Haley fought in the typical English style and reminded old ring followers of many other days. He was awkward to a certain extent in his feet, but this made him only troublesome, and his judgment of distance in trying to land his blows was very good. His best offence was rushing into Delmont and by superior strength beat him to the punch. He had height and reach on the local boxer, but lacked the shiftiness, and Delmont often eluded the swings Haley on his wild leads.

Gets Only Knockdown.

Delmont's cattike quickness caused Haley to miss time and again, and had he landed several wild swings it would have fared badly for the diminutive boxer. It was Delmont's game to catch the English boy with a right cross as he came to him and he almost succeeded in several instances. He was particularly strong in infighting and kept his foe's head bobbing in the clinches with vicious jolts to the jaw with either hand.

Delmont secured the only knockdown in the bout, which came in the twelfth round when both were going at the pace of a racing clip. The little North End Italian pounced over his right to the jaw and as Haley was tied up and linley went to the mat. He was up in an instant, though somewhat dazed, and Delmont half wrestled him down again as he tried to put over another haymaker.

Both boys weighed in at 122 pounds and agreed to fight at that weight at the ringside. In the third round Delmont cut Haley's lip and after every exchange the blood trickled over his features. Haley gave special attention to the body and landed some terrific welts on the heart of the Hub boy, the force of his well-knitted frame behind them.

Clinched Things at End.

For seven rounds Delmont had a whatever advantage there was, reaching Haley with clean rights to the head and excelling him in action as close quarters. Then Haley surprised Delmont in the eighth with a heavy left on the jaw which caused the Boston boy to back up for a few seconds. Haley's aggressiveness kept in front for three rounds, when Delmont settled his stride again and clinched things in the last couple of rounds. There was manifest satisfaction displayed at the decision, as many declared Haley entitled to the bout, there was no questioning which boy rounded out the bout in winning the long contest.

The semi-final bout of eight rounds, between Kid Manning of Pawtucket and Jack Barry of Cumberland held almost as much interest as the fight card, as they are much money bet between rival factions. Manning got the decision and nearly ended by a knockout in the second round. Both boys hammering each other from bell to bell.

Dick Stewart of Attleboro, the colored boy, put Jack O'Neil of Blackstone to sleep in half a round in the first preliminary bout.

BUNK IN FRANKLIN PARK; HOLMES IS AFTER HIM

BY A. CONNEM DOYLE.

"NOW, Watson," said Holmes, getting the hop gun down from the shelf, "we have half an hour to ourselves. Let us make use of it. My case is, as I told you, almost complete, but we must not err on the side of over-confidence. Simple as the case seems now, there may be something deeper underlying it."

"Simple," said Watson.

"Surely," said Holmes, with something of the air of a clinical professor expounding to his class.

"Just sit in the corner there, but touch nothing on the table, as I have my countless papers. Now to work." In the first place, Watson, the Bunk is a Franklin Park. I see by the postage stamp on the Black Hand letter mailed in that locality. Pedink, that the red dust of the park is upon it. It was mailed in Mount Bowdoin, and the inside of two days he will be with me, shackled.

Watson reeled, grabbed the ropes and after a dash of ammonia had connected with his frontpiece, came to again. "Wonderful," he piped as he again looked at Holmes.

Maudie Sees Curlock.

The great sleuth had started to speak again when, with a crisp knock, our landlady announced a card upon a brass salver. "A young lady for you, sir," she said, addressing Holmes.

"Miss Maudie Frankfurter," he read. "Hum! I have no recollection of that name. Ask the young lady to step up, Mrs. Swinedriver. Don't go, doctor. I prefer that you remain."

Miss Frankfurter entered the room with a firm step and an outward composure of manner.

"I have come to you, Mr. Holmes," she said, because some evildoer murdered Philip Bologna, to unravel a little domestic complication. He was much impressed by your kindness and skill."

"Philip Bologna," he repeated thoughtfully. "I believe that I was of some slight service to him. The case, however, as remember it, was a very simple one."

"He did not think so," chirped Maudie. "But at least you cannot say the same of mine. I can hardly imagine anything more strange, more utterly inexplicable, than the situation in which I find myself."

Miss Frankfurter then related the story of the murder of her brother Amiel, and told Holmes that he had been going with Bunk for some time. She told the story as far as two years in Amiel's life, and then Holmes, raising his finger, stopped her.

"By Thursday," Says Holmes.

"I have enough, miss. I thank you. By Thursday next this man Bunk will be in the Tombs or my name is not Holmes."

The Countess beat it, leaving us alone again.

"Have you anything on for this evening, Watson?" piped the world-famous sleuth.

"No," replied Watson.

"Then get your rag picker, your cap and your ammunition. We may be gone for a few days, but this thing is a pipe. Sue has offered $50,000 reward. We will put the money in and out. Are you ready? One moment, I forgot my hop. Now, Watson, we are off on the greatest murder mystery the police of the world have ever known."

SPEEDWAY IS SURE TO BE FINISHED

All that remains for the completion of the Franklin Field speedway is Mayor Fitzgerald's signature to the bill passed by both the Common Council and the Board of Aldermen authorizing the expenditure of $6,000 from the Deer Island fund to be used for that purpose. As the Mayor is a member of the Manchester Driving Club there is not much doubt that his name will be affixed before the close of the week.

How much the improvements will mean in matinee racing over the speedway is shown by the plans already drawn up. There is to be a return drive alongside of the speedway, with a fence between the two.

The speedway will be lengthened some over two hundred feet, which will allow of racing the right way of the course, in place of the opposite as has been the case in the past. At the finish a grandstand will be erected for the spectators, and a judges' and starters' stand, while the starting judge is to be looked out for with a stand of his own.

It has been a long stiff fight the Dorchester Driving Club has had in getting the city fathers to concur in putting more money in the speedway, as for two years they have been after the appropriation. Only two weeks ago, however, Boss Walter A. Newbert named his legislative committee in Edward Richardson, A. W. Danehek, E. A. Haddock, John H. Buckley and Herbert W. Burr, and the successful work they accomplished in so short a time speaks well for their zeal in the matter.

CONNOLLY WON FROM SULLIVAN

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 29—Tommy Sullivan last night spoiled one of the best fights ever seen here when, after several rounds of fast milling with Bartley Connolly of this city, he accidentally landed his adversary, losing the decision.

Bartley is the fourth time Connolly has met Sullivan, and each time he has shown a little better. Last night he surprised by what ones and fought Tommy savagely at his own fast game. Sullivan was a shade more aggressive, and followed up his attack better than Connolly. His right punches to the jaw were terrific, and in the seventh he had Bartley dazed a few moments.

In the eighth Connolly in dodging a left swing caught the blow low. The foul was purely accidental.

FUEL CONTEST PROVES TO BE A SUCCESS

HARTFORD, Ct., Jan. 29.—The three-car comparative fuel test reached Hartford at 7 o'clock last evening and the party remained in this city for the night. The run from New York was more satisfactory than the most sanguine of its projectors had anticipated. The three stock, 1907 model, touring cars furnished for the test by the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Company of Tarrytown, N. Y., are standing the pace remarkably well, and the run from New York yesterday has shown them remarkably well adapted to the use of each of the three hydrocarbons.

The kerosene car in particular has shown up remarkably well. A somewhat offensive odor notwithstanding, the kerosene car has at all times kept in close touch with the other two cars. The alcohol car was used as pilot, being driven by H. A. Grant of Tarrytown, N. Y., who has had charge of arrangements for the test. No attempt has been made at speed, the intention being rather to make the run under touring conditions.

An hour and a half was made for lunch and an opportunity to refill the fuel tanks. Each car carries a sufficient supply to make the trip to Boston without replenishing, carefully measured by the official inspectors, H. J. Reich of the Scientific American and H. S. Sawyer of the A. A. A. before start.

This morning the party started for Boston via Springfield and Worcester, finishing at the headquarters of the Bay State A. A.

HONEY MELLODY WILL RISK HIS WELTER TITLE

Honey Mellody will risk his welterweight championship against Willie Lewis at Valley Falls, R. I., on February 11. The weight is 142 pounds at 3 o'clock. That was called for in the articles under which Mellody won his title from former Champion Joe Walcott, and the same conditions prevailed when Walcott beat Rube Ferns.

Mellody and Lewis have been matched for some time, but have been dickering with the clubs. The Rochester, N. Y., club made a good offer, but the manager was too insistent and lost all chance. The Rhode Island A. C. also made a bid, but the proffer was not near as good as that from Matchmaker Dwyer of the Valley Falls Club.

Mellody and Lewis at Valley Falls will draw big. They fought at Chelsea on the Fourth of July, Mellody winning on a knockout in three rounds. But up to the knockout it looked like Lewis's match, for he made Honey look bad for one and one-half rounds. He scored two knockdowns on Mellody, and it looked "all day" for him.

SWEENEY AND STEERS ON MAT

Alphonse Steers, by far the biggest card that Manager Farren has so far induced to wrestle at the Columbia, will be seen in action at that theatre this evening, when he faces Paul Sweeney, probably the best known of New England's heavyweight mat artists. Steers is the man who a few weeks ago defeated Tom Jenkins so decisively in Montreal and who succeeded in throwing both the Italian wonder, Pergoli, and Pietro within an hour at the same city last week. Since coming the this country from Belgium Steers has not lost a match, and in his numerous bouts has surmounted innumerable obstacles.

Paul Sweeney, the Nova Scotia giant, is the most promising of the New England heavyweights wrestlers and has defeated all the top-notchers of his class, his latest being Matchmaker Dwyer, whom he threw twice in half an hour at Lewiston last Wednesday night. He is liable to make the Belgium athlete hit the mat to-night, as think the knowing ones who have seen the New Hampshire strong boy in action.

GLOVER AND O'NEIL DRAW.

SALEM, Jan. 29.—One of the fastest bouts seen in Salem this season was pulled off last night before the Young Men's Athletic Club when Billy Glover of South Boston and Eddy O'Neil of Cambridge went eight rounds to a draw.

ALL LATEST NEWS OF SPORTS BRIEFLY TOLD

GENERAL.

Philbrick of H. A. A. at the end of his three springs of rolling in the smallest Boston pie series last night, got down to the hardest kind of business record on the three-string records. He rolled 130 for a scoring total of 389. Lewis Counts, the Lewis of Cornell, and his three-string total of 646 was about the best of the evening. Bad ball to the credit of his team mate, Fuller, in his three strings made a total of 337 strikes and spares.

In the first game of the C class amateur billiard tournament at the Hub parlors last night Dunham was the victor over Burnham, 150 to 101. Tonight Omaha plays Canobie.

J. W. Farley, head coach of the Harvard football eleven 1905, unquestionably decides that he will be the head coach of the team for Captain Harold Farnsworth. Farley, however, says that he may be the coach this year in absentia, and Farley personally will not be seen with the crimson squad, however, I am sure that the selection and coaching of the head coach will be left to a committee considered me as a possibility.

Intercollegiate rowing is to receive a great boom towards the end of the American rowing season, when some crack crews will meet at Philadelphia, in the opinion of the A. R. A. Association. This branch of sport has been neglected by the various rowing bodies. The intercollegiate crews expected to enter are the Cornell and Central manual eights of Philadelphia, the Georgetown and Pennsylvania freshmen and school crews. The Cornell crew will be the only one of the college crews that are to be especially invited are the Worcester academy and the Spring field high school eights.

THE KENNEL.

Showing the wide interest in dogs it is only necessary to say that the entries at the coming New England Kennel show at Mechanics' Building February 19-22 are reminded that entries will close Wednesday, the 30th, with Secretary Jack Taylor of J. H. Middlebrook, Jr., of Boston, and the Bruiser, belonging to James K. Clarke, of Philadelphia. In addition the Stamford, Motor Works of Stamford, Conn., and the Manker-Hesvenner Motor Company of Chicago, have made entries.

A number of bouts owned by Florida people will attempt to keep some of the trophies in the South for at least a year, until the next regatta, most of the prizes having to be won by the same contestant two years in succession before becoming his personal property. Mr. F. P. Smith, of Chicago, has entered a fresh model boat construction which he calls a hydro-curve hull boat, and the Zoest, an Italian winner, in addition to some trophies to carry across the Atlantic. Directly following the races, which continue to February 9, an elaborately planned illumination and fireworks will wind up the week of gayety.

After the crowd has reated for a few days it will move further south to Miami, where the Miami Motor Boat association will hold its first annual regatta. This will be followed by the "big to the" race, which, being a new departure in long distance motor boating, will be closely watched by enthusiasts throughout the country. It will necessarily determine the efficiency of the motor boat in the open sea, for the course covers the one hundred and sixty miles from Miami to Nassau and crosses the Gulf Stream. As a consequence the following boats the United States steamer Scorpion has been detailed to cover the course with them and render the necessary assistance in case of accident of any kind. Upon the arrival of the latest long distance racer at Nassau there will be a motor boat regatta, for which the sunny waters of the bay there are admirably adapted.

BASEBALL.

The signed contracts of Cy Young and Lew Crigor were received at headquarters yesterday, and the former left for his home in Peckville, Pa., in Pecil, and felt sure that he could show the world a few more. Young's contract, Lew Crigor said he was coaching the boys at Holy Cross, and that Bradley Miles from his home in Bastard, "I work with them in the gym," he wrote, "and we fell down and bump each other."

Collins says that he has reduced his weight from 180 pounds to 160 pounds. He figures that he can make the fine take of keeping down to eighteen pounds more before he leaves his present home to join the Red Sox at Little Rock.

Here were three very satisfactory communications to be received much for the cause of baseball in this city next season.

American league umpires will indicate strikes by holding the right arm high in the air. For a ball they will keep the arm down. Bad job for "Fin" Daly.

Lake Wells will be the next president of the Virginia League. Jake can't be beaten.

HARNESS HORSES.

If the present excellent sledding will only hang on till next week there will be a heigh-ho time at the Charles River Speedway on the Concord and the "dots" have their long-anticipated opportunity.

The owners of fast trotters should get after that Fall's Corner track at once. It is the finest one in the country and will be in superior condition for facilitating the measure of Tom Pink, Peter Volo or any other miserable rotter of the sort. It is a real challenge just the same. Play fair with Mr. Saxton. If he owns the Dorchester track so do members of the Metropolitan Driving Club, and they will be glad to give him the opportunity of running their horses against his if he wants to get a rog. In case they don't it will look like a boycott.

John W. Linnehan, one of the former members of the Dorchester Driving Club, has been doing right in the swim the coming matinee season over the Readville track. Linnehan's horse, Bessie, is by a pipe-organ daughter of the famous sire, Sidney Dillon. She is not a trotter, and so she or her new home this week.

When the members of the Dorchesters saw in the SUNDAY AMERICAN how George H. Dovey is going to present the club with an elegant cup there was much joy. At the weekly meeting of the organization Monday evening a vote of thanks was voted the donor, and his name was placed on the list of honorable members.

The Dorchesters and Boston City Driving Club have practically decided that the Fall's Corner track for a speedway the Norwood road will be used. It is a mile straightaway and a fair piece of road-ing.

Don't be misled by alluring advertisements of schools that have no standing, but INVESTIGATE FOR YOURSELF and LOOK OUR PLANTS OVER. Remember that when you deal with our concern you are dealing with a reliable Corporation, chartered to do business under Commonwealth of Massachusetts. A GRADUATE of our schools at Boston or Providence can RECEIVE a LICENSE to OPERATE a car in any State in the United States or Canada. We are the only automobile school that can secure such a license for our graduates. Being in close touch with all automobile manufacturers and owners, we are enabled to place a large number of our graduates in fine positions, paying $25 to $75 a week. Our price is the lowest that a first-class course can be obtained for at any reliable school.

You can inquire about our financial standing of any newspaper or bank in the city of Boston or Providence. Every graduate of our school receives a Diploma, which shows to the automobile world that the graduate is a competent automobile operator, the same as a student graduating from Harvard or Yale College is proficient in medicine or law. Our graduates can be found in good positions in every State and territory throughout the United States and in many of the foreign countries. Chauffeurs earn $25 to $75 a week, repair men 60 cents an hour, salesmen $35 to $60 a week. Hundreds of positions waiting for competent men. We make a specialty of complete course by correspondence. "Easy Money" in the Senate

Just a Hand Raised, a Vote Cast—But They Do It Even MORE EASILY Sometimes

The distinguished Senate of the United States voted to increase its own salary by fifty per cent. They felt in duty bound to do this, for as they have done everything the trusts wanted, AND HAVE THEREBY INCREASED THE COST OF LIVING EVERYWHERE, it seemed only just and proper for them to raise their own salaries in order that they might not suffer by the trusts' extortion, for which they are responsible. Isn't that perfectly clear and just and fair? No? Why not?

Those in the gallery were impressed with the great facility shown by the Senators in tacking on Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars to their annual pay. A Senator sits in his chair for six years, and a good deal longer if the trusts like him. The vote gave to each gentleman Fifteen Thousand Dollars extra for a six-year-term.

It was not HARD to get that money. One gentleman introduced the idea, one or two others languidly raised a hand in seconding the motion. Then there was a general vote, and the thing was done. Whether it will go through smoothly or be stopped at the White House or elsewhere we do not know.

The Senate is to be congratulated upon the easy manner in which it adds fifty per cent. to its own income. But that method is exceeded in ease by the manner in which certain gentlemen in the Senate make money as they sit in their seats. Not a few of them are earning very large sums, there in the Senate, WITHOUT EVEN RAISING THEIR HANDS OR DOING ANYTHING VISIBLE TO THE NAKED EYE. For further details as to this even EASIER way of making money consult any one of a number of tried and true trust Senators—or go out to that prison in the West, where one of the Senators is locked up, and ask HIM. Something happened to him, but it wasn't the fault of the Senate's system. He was only a little crude.

You readers who are NOT able to add fifty per cent. to your salaries so smoothly will doubtless do a little thinking about this action in the Senate. Very likely you will wish that you were Senators and able to meet the problem of trust prices so simply.

Of course thinking won't do YOU much good immediately. The trust will continue to own the Senate—that is to say, a good working majority of it. The Senators will continue to earn the trusts' money by permitting trusts to rob you, and the Senate will continue to increase its salary from time to time as it feels like it.

It might, however, be worth while and good mental exercise for you to reflect on the extent to which this thing can go.

If trusts can own your government machinery, AS THEY DO, and if the members of your government machinery, after delivering you to the trusts and putting up the price of living, CAN INCREASE THEIR OWN SALARIES TO SUIT THE NEW PRICES, besides getting what the trusts give them, what is the exact difference between YOU people living in this republic and people living under an absolute autocracy?

No citizen of the United States has anything whatever to say about that increase in the Senators' salaries. And the Senators don't care in the least what the citizens of the United States think about it, BECAUSE THE SENATORS ARE NOT ELECTED BY THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES. They are elected by members of Legislatures whom they buy OR WHOM THE TRUSTS BUY FOR THEM.

Wouldn't it be a good idea for the people to get really interested in the election of Senators by the people, which this newspaper has discussed for years? And wouldn't it be a good idea to take more interest in political affairs generally? Money at the top TAXING the people, and officials owned by the organized money paying themselves well and DELIVERING the people to organized money—that isn't a very pretty picture of American government, is it?

We ought to have mentioned in connection with this salary raising enterprise the fact that Representative McNary has introduced a bill to increase the pay of every civil employe of the government, of every officer and man in the military and naval services—ADDING TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT., OR TWENTY-FIVE CENTS IN EVERY DOLLAR, TO THE PRESENT PAY.

In many cases these increases will be well deserved if granted. There is no doubt that letter carriers and postoffice clerks should have their pay increased. There is no doubt that American soldiers and sailors should be not only the best paid in the world, as they are now, BUT WELL PAID.

There is no doubt that many men doing hard, dull, routine duty as clerks of the government are insufficiently rewarded. And all of these men, IF THEY ARE IN NO WAY RESPONSIBLE FOR TRUST INCREASING OF PRICES, AND IN NO WAY THE AGENTS OF THESE TRUSTS, are entitled to the increase that is suggested, beyond a doubt.

But it ought to be firmly fixed in the minds of the American people that they are absolutely unsafe; that their problem of expenditures will become more and more hard if they allow those who HELP the trusts to help themselves also via the public treasury.

In Mabel's Muff

By Harry B. Metcalf

WITHIN the warmth of Mabel's muff
You'll find all sorts and styles of stuff—
A lavender with a hand-wrought hem;
A glove or two—What need of them?
A dainty purse that's passing stout,
With pa's allowance fattened out;
A veil, that half conceals the grace,
Oftimes, of Mabel's pretty face;
A billet doux, the last from Ned,
That must be o'er and o'er reread—
And just as though that weren't enough,
Two soft, white hands—in Mabel's muff.

Little Editorials from the People

WANTS ACTION ON FOREST RESERVES BILL

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In spite of the earnest efforts on the part of those interested in our Eastern forests to secure the passage of a bill now waiting proper recognition in the House of Representatives, a bill providing for national forest reserves in the White Mountains and Southern Appalachian region, it seems that we are to be blocked by the will of one man, the present Speaker of the House.

He has admitted to delegates from New England and the South that he has neglected even to read the bill and states that on account of rush of business he cannot promise that it will be voted on at this session.

In view of the activity at the present time among those in charge of the cutting of the forests a delay in securing legislation will be disastrous, if not fatal.

Why should the East be discriminated against, when forest reserves in the West have been voted recently. It is a great pity that one man should be allowed to checkmate the wishes of a majority in such a matter of national interest as this, for all sections of the United States are in favor of these reservations.

Russia has her Czar. Shall we have our Speaker? This country is too sensible to admit of such a possibility. We sincerely hope that Speaker Cannon will not adhere to his present resolve and that the passage of this bill will soon be recorded.

Shall Our Cities Be Governed by Commissions?

By William N. Osgood

THE apparent failure of city governments under the present defective charters is attracting much attention. No wonder that large numbers hesitate to petition the Legislature for city charters, when they contemplate the appalling corruption and incompetence of many public officials under the present system.

No wonder that conservative men like President Eliot advise a change and advocate the government of cities by commissions, the creation of eminent scholars and publicists as the head of Harvard University may be considered. Like all students of government from De Tocqueville down to Bryce, he takes off his hat to our New England town government.

With one accord they admit that this is the ideal government for small communities, but not for communities which have grown so large that will no citizen cannot assemble in one place at one time.

In consequence, President Eliot jumps to the conclusion that something else must be tried. He should remember that the cities are now trying something else. They have discovered themselves from the town meeting and are directed very unwisely all conflicts. Instead of having too much governed by the people, we have too little, or none.

Popular government cannot be said to be a failure in the cities until it has been tried. Therefore, instead of plunging into government by commissions and rushing into "ills we know not of," would it not be a good plan to devise some system for uncovering the town meetings as much as possible?

How, then, can we make the holding of local public offices honorable and attractive citizens? The same cause obtains in both cases. The best citizens in each community take little active interest in public affairs.

As a result, the management of the town meeting and the city government falls into the hands of unrepresentative persons.

The indifference of influential and competent citizens in civic affairs must be overcome. That is the great problem and that is all the problem there is. It is not enough to say that they are more interested in their own business than in public business, and hence have no time for public affairs.

They find time enough for other diversions and pleasures. It is absurd to conclude that they would not be willing to hold public office if it were honorable and self-respecting to do so.

How then can we make the holding of local public office honorable and attractive to this class of men? This can only be done by convincing them that as public officials they would have not only great responsibilities, but that the voters would support and indorse them in all acts performed faithfully in behalf of the public.

I submit that some plan which retains the representative form of the present city government, joined with the town meeting idea, is far better than either system for cities and large towns. We would do well to study and watch the working of the Newport city government under its new charter.

This, or some form based upon it, is probably destined to be the prevailing city government of the future. The city officials should be accountable to no one but those who elected them, and they should be accountable at all times, as provided in our State constitution, and this means literally every day in the year and not merely upon election days as now.

Then, and not till then, will we have good government in our cities, because honest, able, public-spirited citizens will then be willing to devote some attention to public affairs, conscious that they may appeal at all times to the voters and defeat the schemes of dishonest and corrupt politicians.

She Says the Ideal of Married Happiness Comes Only When Genuine Comradeship Exists

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

ALL love that has not friendship for its base
Is like a mansion built upon the sand.
Though brave its walls as any in the land,
And its tall turrets lift their heads in grace;
Though skilful and accomplished artists trace
Most beautiful designs on every hand,
And gleaming statues in dim niches stand,
And fountains play in some flow'r hidden place.

Yet, when from the frowning east a sudden gust
Of adverse fate is blown, or sad rains fall
Day in, day out, against its yielding wall,
Lo! the fair structure crumbles to the dust.
Love, to endure life's sorrow and earth's woe,
Needs friendship's solid mason work below.

DOMESTIC love and happiness is founded upon friendship, a wife a husband's best friend, if either expects to live up to the highest ideal of love and companionship the end of life.

To begin as the friend and to develop into the lover is not so ideal a relationship as to begin as the lover and to have the element of friendship evolve like a flower out of the coarser stalk of passion.

Only Perfect Union

ALL the lover realizes in the first ardent phases of his infatuation is his desire to possess the woman he loves.

But after he becomes her husband, if he is a strong and noble character, and she is in any degree worthy of his love, he should feel an impulse to be her friend—to help her in every way possible to grow toward lovely and perfect womanhood; to protect her from unnecessary trouble, and to sustain her through all the ills and trials which fall naturally to the human lot.

When the wife realizes that this is the husband's wish and purpose, and meets his comradeship with loyalty and protective impulses with confidence and gratitude, then only love reaches an altitude impossible to be attained through any other course.

Only when the husband realizes that she must not be the mere sweetheart, housekeeper or mistress of her husband, but his best friend, looking toward his highest good in every way, and that often this means forgetfulness of self and personal pleasure, can she know that the perfection of domestic union is.
